DO BIG MAIL ORDER BUSINESS IN LIQUOR

NEW YORK RAID EXPOSES THE NAMES OF MANY CUSTOMERS

Twenty Thousand Orders for Whisky, Champagne, Wines and Cordials—Many Shipments to Columbus, Cincinnati and Cleveland—Corruption in Dry Law Enforcement—Railroad Officials Assisting Bootleggers

The tracing of liquor shipments to all parts of the country by mail-order bootleggers, whose New York Broadway offices were raided Friday, will result in many arrests and seizures, it was said by Emery R. Buckner, the United States attorney.

Meanwhile Mr. Buckner has ordered his entire staff of prohibition assistants carefully to scan books and files kept by the concern, in preparation for a sweeping John Doe investigation.

Records of its business transactions confiscated in the company's suite of offices at 1123 Broadway revealed that it has filled more than 20,000 orders for whisky, champagne, assorted wines and cordials, much of which had been shipped to Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and other Ohio cities.

The keys to wardrobe trunks in which the contraband was shipped by express, were sent ahead by mail to the company's customers. William Gilbert, general prohibition agent, whose investigations in the last two months took him to the Pacific coast and from Detroit and New Orleans, reported to Mr. Buckner that at least forty solicitors were employed to obtain orders for liquor. They served either as local agents or traveling salesmen, visiting cities in certain regions allotted to them as their exclusive territory.

These solicitors advertised the Broadway firm's wares in hinterland cities as "high seas liquor," according to Gilbert.

Mr. Buckner said an analysis has not been made yet of any of the liquor seized in Friday's raid, but a large supply of counterfeit revenue stamps was found, indicating that domestic rye whisky shipped by the mail order house was "cut" and resealed with these fake strips.

Many of the thousands of customers on the concern's books are prominent in the political, social and professional life of their communities, the officers say. None of the names are to be made public at present.

The largest anti-liquor fleet assembled off the northeast coast since the sensational blockade of the New York harbor Saturday patrolled off the summer White House at Swampscott, Massachusetts, to prevent a liquor landing.

Four of the fastest naval destroyers; the McCall, Beale, Patterson and Cummings joined the large fleet of smaller patrol boats.

An airplane flies from the Boston airdome daily, locates the liquor fleet off shore and drops messages to the patrol on its return.

For the second timesince his arrival at Swampscott, President Coolidge could sit on the white court veranda and see plainly the ships of the patrol fleet darting back and forth.

An augmented rum fleet was reported to be twenty miles off shore awaiting fast motor boats to come out, buy a large supply and then attempt to run the gauntlet of the dry fleet. The schooners; Grace, Ruby and Montrose believed to be liquor laden, were picketed off Cape Anne, while the James W. Parker was anchored off the Fippennies Ledge. Reports that other liquor ships had arrived in the row flashed thru coast guard circles.

New evidence of corruption in the enforcement of prohibition has been disclosed to federal authorities in numerous instances as a result of the efforts of Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, to rebuild the enforcement system.

The disclosures came in reports from United States attorneys to the department of justice, which had requested of them a statement, detailing for their confidential information an accurate perspective of conditions within the jurisdiction of each prosecuting officer.

While department officials declined to discuss the contents of the reports except in a general way, the information contained in certain of them was said to be alarming and indicative of a need for concerted federal and state action.

No official would hint, however, as to the possible course of the federal government, but the statement was made by a high department of justice official that the department has received no funds from congress with which to make such investigations.

On department of justice officials who studied the reports, the deepest impression was made by the general inference that state and local authorities were not cooperating with federal officials in a majority of cases.

Certain of the attorneys felt the federal government was playing a lone hand in their jurisdictions. On the other hand, it was explained that "fine help" was accorded to the government officers in many other instances, and that where such help was had the dry law well enforced.

It was also shown that a number of federal prohibition agents were winking at violations. It was indicated that Mr. Andrews would receive the names of agents to whom suspicion was attached in the reports and their services ended when the reorganization becomes effective.

Railroads were mentioned and officials made no effort to conceal their belief that minor rail officials were willing to assist in moving the contraband.

A YOUNG BOY DROWNED IN DARBY CREEK

Lloyd Shepherd, of Columbus, Unable to Swim Lost His Life Saturday.

Lloyd, the fourteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Shepherd, of East Main street, Columbus, lost his life in Darby creek, on the farm of Abe J. Williams in Jackson township, Saturday afternoon about three o'clock.

The boy and his sister, Lucile Shepherd, have been staying at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cordray, this summer. The lad, in company with three other boys; Clark Kinser, Wayne Stewart and Herman Clifton, started for the creek after dinner to go swimming. The swimming hole where the tragedy occurred is about eight feet. Can you swim? "the other boys asked Shepherd. "No," he replied. "Well, you better keep out, it's deep in here," they said, but the temptation was too great. He soon had his clothing off and inside a few moments went to a watery grave.

The three boys did their utmost to save the lad, but were not successful. The coronor was notified and Justice E. C. Preece, as acting coronor viewed the body.

The drowned boy is a relative of Mrs. Lillian Hinrod, of East Main street.

When the accident happened the boy's father was in this city and he at once went to the scene of the accident. The body was taken to his home in Columbus.

The funeral services will be held from the Miller avenue Evangelical church, Columbus, Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock by the pastor, Rev. P. E. Smoke. Interment in the Darbyville cemetery.

ELGAR BARRERE SEVERELY HURT IN ACCIDENT

Both Bones Broken in Right Leg When Automobiles Come Together.

Elgar Barrere, senior member of the firm of Barrere & Nickerson, was seriously injured Sunday morning one mile north of Chillicothe on the Columbus pike, when the car he was driving south collided with a car coming north.

It seems that Mr. Barrere, who drives a Hupp car, was trailing another southbound auto. The car ahead stopped and in order to avoid running into it, Mr. Barrere started to drive around and in doing so, he ran into another car headed north. The impact was so great that Mr. Barrere was thrown against the dash of his car and both bones in his right leg were broken below the knee. The car in which he was riding was completely turned around, ran thru a fence into a field and headed toward the north.

The radiator of the car was smashed and the frame was bent. It is not known whether the engine escaped injury, but the car is a bad looking wreck.

The other car was owned by a Mr. Douglass, of Columbus, who was considerably cut and bruised, but no bones were broken. The injured men were removed to the City hospital in Chillicothe. Dr. Patton, of Chillicothe, is attending Mr. Barrere's injuries. His wife, who was a guest of Mrs. Spetnagle, is at his bedside.

BLENN MOGAN KILLED WHEN CAR HIT POLE

Lost Control of Machine When Descending Hill -- Death Came Instantly.

Blenn Mogan, son of John Mogan, of North Scioto street, was instantly killed Saturday afternoon while driving a seven ton truck down a hill near Lancaster.

The Lancaster Daily Eagle gives the following account of the accident: "Blenn Mogan was instantly killed at 2:30 Saturday afternoon when the truck he was driving for the Brower & Brewer company crashed into a telephone pole at the foot of Bush hill, just north of Lancaster on the Chillicothe pike. Mogan's head was crushed and his features mashed beyond recognition.

"Those who witnessed the accident aver that Mogan was traveling at a rate of forty-five or fifty miles. He lost control of the machine descending the incline and the huge seven ton truck left the road, crashed thru the pole and landed fifty feet away in the field, after turning over several times. Mogan's lifeless body was thrown into the ditch by the road. It is believed his head was crushed uring one of the turns of the catapulting truck.

"The victim of the accident resided at Sharp's rooming house on Locust street during his employment here with Brower & Brewer who are paying South Broad street."

The deceased was born in this city August 17, 1904, and was the son of John and Ida Lindsey Mogan. The young man was an industrious young fellow and well liked and had a host of friends. He was a member of the Circleville Athletic club, basketball team and Motor Transport Corps, No. 145.

On the return trip the party will visit Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, the Grand Canyon, Albuquerque, Colorado Springs, Denver, Kansas City and Chicago. The trip will be made in twenty-one days.

Healthful Drinks for Children

EVERY child should have at least a quart of milk a day. But sometimes it is hard to get children to drink plain milk. However it can be made tempting and the food value increased by adding a rich cream malt food with that delicious chocolate flavor children love. The malt is very easily digested and assists in the digestion of other foods. This malted chocolate comes in air-tight tin cans which protect its natural qualities during its trip from the packer to the pantry.

To make a cool, healthful drink, pour a glass of cold milk into a shaker, or a glass jar or milk bottle, if you have no shaker. Add two or three heaping teaspoonful of the malted chocolate on top of the milk. Cap tight and shake well. The children will not only delight in the drink, but in the process of making and shaking. For very young children, use only one teaspoonful of the malted chocolate. It may be served hot or cold.

History.

The stories of Alexander and Caesar, further than they instruct us in the art of living well, and furnish us with observations of wisdom and prudence, are not one whit to be preferred to the history of Robin Hood, or the Seven Wise Masters. I do not deny but history is very useful, and very instructive of human life; but if it be studied only for the reputation of being a historian, it is a very empty thing; and he that can tell all the particulars of Herodotus and Plutarch, Curtius and Livy, without making any other use of them, may be an ignorant man with a good memory, and with all his pains, hath only filled his head with Christmas tales.—John Locke

SAVE THEM

Circleville, Ohio, R. F. D. 1, Aug. 26, 1924.
MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LIMBER NECK or PTOMANE. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified your statements. One case of Limber-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it was a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got well. The rest of my flock straightened out and are doing well now.

Sincerely,
MRS. LUCY HONNOLD,

NEW STYLE OF MOTION PICTURES IS SHOWN

Said To Eliminate Optical Distortions When Viewed From Sharp Angles.

Chicago, July 17.—The Chicago Tribune today published a story that motion pictures in the third dimension, which eliminate the optical distortions experienced by those who look at the screen at sharp angles from unfavored seats have been demonstrated by a pioneer producer who has worked on the idea nine years.

By means of a special projecting device which brings back ground into sharper focus and produces a compensated perspective, every detail of the picture reflects the same intensity of light as in the original setting.

The third dimension films are almost twice the size of standard reels. They are projected on a screen measuring approximately 40 by 20 feet.

George E. Spoor, founder of the Essanay Co. and inventor of the equipment, demonstrated it yesterday at a private exhibition. Spoor withdrew from commercial production in 1916 and since has been working on the new equipment with P. John Bergen, a camera expert.

10-YEAR-OLD HEIR TO BIG FORTUNE LIVES IN SHACK

New York, July 17.—As the result of a decision of the court of appeals at Albany in her favor yesterday, Mrs. Mary Casey Thorne, who was divorced by the late Joel Thorne, announced today through her attorney that she will ask to be appointed guardian of her son, Joel Wolfe Thorne, Jr., 10-year-old heir to $3,000,000.

The boy, according to Mrs. Thorne's attorney, John K. Kirby, is living in a "shack" on an unpaved street in Denver, although his income from bequests from his father and grandfather is $150,000 a year. This has been tied up, however, pending outcome of the litigation decided yesterday.

The grandfather of the boy, around whom the legal fight centers, was Samuel Thorne, former partner of the late James J. Hill, railroad owner. Under his will, the boy is given $1,000,000 and the income from a fund of $2,000,000. Bequests from his father brings his fortune to $3,000,000.

JUDGE SNIDER

Judge Snider gave her the choice of going to the Marysville Reformatory or going back to her home in Pleasantville and properly caring for her three minor children. She choose to return to her home in Pleasantville and follow Snider's orders. A sentence of thirty days at the Marysville Reformatory and a fine of ten dollars was suspended by the judge during her good behavior.—Lancaster Eagle.

Interesting Old Legend

Blondel, a French troubador, attendant and friend of Richard Coeur de Leon, is said to have discovered the prison where Richard was held by slinging under the tower a song only he and the king knew.

Old Diamond Rivals as Coachers

Left to right, Chief Bender, one of Connie Mack's stars in the days when he was winning pennants and world series, and Hans Lobert, of New York Giants fame, who opposed each other once more when their teams met on the baseball field. Bender is coaching the Annapolis baseball team, and Lobert is coaching the West Point team.

Picks Team of All-Time Big League Ball Stars

Since picking all-American football teams is all the rage, just to be different Hughley Jennings of the New York Giants was asked to pick an all-American baseball team.

Hughley, who has been connected with major-league baseball for better than thirty years, is certainly qualified to make the selection.

Always game, willing to take a chance, knowing his choices will meet with disfavor in many quarters, Jennings spoke thusly:

"The greatest infield I have ever seen in action would be made up of Sisler at first, Lajoie at second, Wagner at short and Frisch at third.

"My selection of Frisch over Jimmy Collins will no doubt occasion some surprise. Despite the fact that Frisch is now playing second, I regard third as his natural position and consider him a more valuable all-around player than Jimmy Collins.

"The outfield would be made up of Cobb, Speaker and Keeler. I have selected Keeler in preference to Ruth because I regard him as a greater team player.

"My battery would be Mathewson and Bresnahan. There never was a better one. Incidentally, I would be content to manage the team in any league.

Sport Notes

Star class yachts number over 300 in all parts of the world.

There are over 3,000 golf and country clubs in the United States.

There are more than 2,000 golf clubs in the British Isles, in addition to 900 clubs for women.

The United States Football association, the governing body of soccer, has $12,218.42 in its treasury.

Kansas City (Mo.) Country club may enter a polo team in the Philadelphia tourney in September.

The United States spends more on sports each year than all the other countries in the world combined.

Because of the popularity of betting on all sports in England 300,000 book-makers are engaged in taking bets.

Helen Walnwright, woman all-around swimming champion, has announced her entry into the professional ranks.

Before golf began to be what it is, people used to ask occasionally what made the tired business man tired.

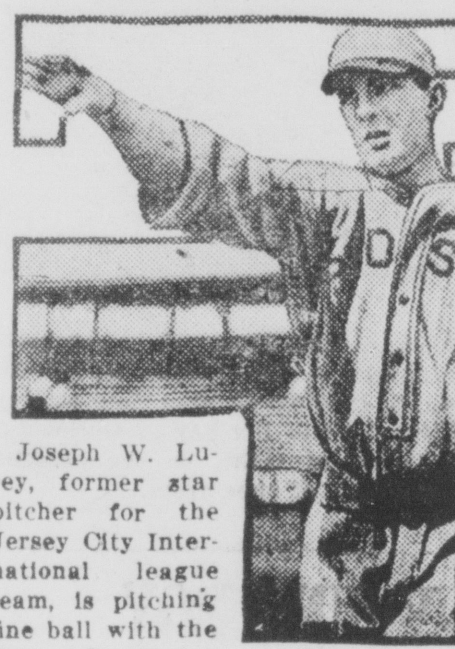

We haven't heard the worst until word comes that Mr. Dempsey's trick nose will disqualify him for riveting in another emergency.

Dudley Lee Is Star

Dudley Lee of Tulsa, Okla., for whom President Bob Quinn dug up the tidy sum of $50,000 and exchanged a player. Lee is said to be a second Maranville, and he'll make the big leaguers sit up and take notice, according to those who have seen him in action. Lee is a power both in batting and fielding.

One Play on Field Nets Frank Chance $140,000

Frank Chance, the "Peerless Leader," who died in Los Angeles, Cal., gained part ownership of the team he so frequently led to victory through a single play, he once related. The one play netted him $140,000, since his stock in the club soared to that value.

It was in 1906, as Chance told it, and the Chicago Nationals were in second place fighting for the pennant and with only a few more games to play.

In a hot game at Cincinnati Chance hit safely and stole second with one out. Joe Tinker, shortstop and then a heavy hitter, was at bat. Everyone expected Tinker to swing heavily. But Chance signaled for a bunt. Tinker laid down a perfect bunt and Chance streaked for third. The "Peerless Leader" did not stop, but headed for home, sliding in safely.

Next day Charles P. Taft, the new owner of the Cubs, sent for his manager.

Chance quoted him as having said, "That was the greatest play I ever saw or ever expect to see. I am going to show you that I appreciate your work and efforts. I am going to let you buy a tenth interest in the club for $10,000."

Chance sold out for $140,000 after he left the club in 1912.

Billiard Cue Caddies a New Wrinkle in London

New wrinkles appear continually in sport. The latest is the use of a cue-caddy. The thing started in London, and has now been brought to New York, and it is thought will likely be popular amongst the more opulent players.

When a certain noted amateur appeared in one of the noted billiard academies of London, with a boy carrying a bag containing several cues from which he made a selection for different shots as the occasion arose, he created considerable of a furore in even such a blasé sporting atmosphere.

The thing however has created a great deal of discussion pro and con. Tom Newman, the professional champion is deady opposed to it in championship play.

He thinks it might be all right for amateurs to give them a chance to develop different shots in practice, but he maintains that it would not only be against the spirit of the game, but would cause delay and confusion, since the professional looks upon his cue almost as part of himself, and has it so evenly balanced, and so sensitively aimed, that to change cue during an important match, would throw him entirely off his game.

Four Errors in Game Gives Record to Ross

Chester Ross, pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, is reported to have set a new error record for modern-day pitchers when he turned in four miscues in a game against the Browns recently.

According to the books, the old mark was three, jointly held by several hurlers in the American league, the last one being Bob Shawkey, who chalked up a trio of boos June 25, 1921.

Ross committed his quartet over an eight-inning stretch, making two in one inning.

Health and Home

THE WOMAN WHO WORKS

In this new order of things, with women, both married and single, broadening their business activities, a very serious problem arises. It is the problem of what, when, and where to eat.

Breakfast is always a hurry-up meal for the men but much more so for the woman who goes to business. Lunches, of course, are taken in the lunchrooms and restaurants in the business districts and are no problem. But how about dinners? Shall they, too, be restaurant meals or can they be so planned that business women may enjoy the home cooking of which they are so fond? Take away the element of haste and anxiety and in its place put carefully thought-out menus, well planned and easily prepared, and home dinners will again regain their high favor with the working housewife.

One of the big worries is frequently with the milk. Did it come? Is it fresh? Is it frozen? Has the milkman been paid? Are the bottles washed and set out? However, there is no cause for worry about milk. Why not keep a dozen cans of evaporated milk in your pantry? There are large cans, equal to a quart of milk and smaller cans that will meet the lesser needs.

For evaporated milk is just pure, fresh milk with more than half the water missing. This water can be replaced in a jiffy, if you so desire or you can use it as cream if rich and creamy foods are desired.

Here are a few recipes that may be used by "The Woman Who Works" for formulating her plans for self help and good home cooking.

Year's Oil Output

Preliminary estimates indicate that the total world production of crude oil in 1924 may have equaled the 1923 output. While the two leading producers—the United States and Mexico—appear to have registered a decline, this has been largely counterbalanced by increased output in some other countries, as Russia, Persia, Rumania and South America—notably Venezuela.

Repeating Slander as Bad as Starting It

Atlanta, Ga.—"Tale bearers are as bad as tale makers," thinks the Georgia Court of Appeals. This statement was made in a decision upholding a judgment in the Stephens Superior court, in which $2,000 was awarded in a suit alleging repetition of slanderous remarks.

The court held that even though the original slander started with a third party and the repeater had accepted the statement in good faith, every repetition was a willful slander.

Many Uses for Cheese

ONE could live on a diet of cheese, bread and fruit without anything else, if one craved no further variety. There is at least one case on record where it was done for a period of two years, by a young man, for the "sake of ease of preparation and economy." He enjoyed his menu and continued in the best of health.

Cheese is one of the most nourishing, healthful and gratifying of foods, & it is given its proper place in the diet. The fuel value of a pound of cheese is equal to that of three pounds of beef, or nearly a gallon of milk. Cheese is higher in proteins than baked beans, whole milk or eggs, and when eaten for what it is, a "meat," it is as easily digested and assimilated as any other protein food.

"But," sighs the housewife, "Cheese is hard to keep in hot weather. It either becomes very hard or it gets oily and strong."

All very true of fresh cut cheese. But why not try the cheeses that come in cans? One can buy practically every kind of cheese that way nowadays.

A delightful cheese recipe you can always be prepared to serve is a cheese omelet. With powdered or evaporated milk in the house, it makes not a whit of difference if the fresh milk goes sour or doesn't arrive, or gets spoiled. Take two eggs, 6 tablespoonsful of grated, canned cheese, a good pinch of salt and another of paprika, one cup milk, and a teaspoonful melted butter.

Beat the yolks of the eggs until light, fold in the cheese, salt and paprika, add the milk, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a deep pan or grill in which the butter has been melted. Cook for about six minutes, then put it in the oven for a few minutes to brown. This is delicious served with currant or damson jelly.

Eggs on toast with cream pimento sauce make an excellent luncheon dish. Rarebits are always relished when the day is not too hot. Stuffed baked potatoes sprinkled with cheese are an inspiration for a meal with creamed tuna fish or chicken, and cheese sandwiches are always delicious for the lighter refreshments.

Ancient Fashions Revived by Paris

Designers Present Bustle and Fitted Silhouette—New Short Frocks.

It is considered an fait in these times to speak of the "Psychology of Dress," and so one frequently hears the subject discussed at intimate gatherings. The subject, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, involves more than merely the tendency of fashion, what is likely to come next, just what ingenuity the modiste will employ or what is most becoming to be worn. Women really get down to fundamentals and influences, morale, history, periods, with as much thought and analysis as if they were regarding any of the fine arts.

Briskly and with much sophistication the ultra-smart may chat of the most recently acquired Reynolds or Romney, of Italian primitives and old Flemish art just brought to light, of Aubusson and Gothic tapestries, of the Spanish paintings, and almost in the same breath of the latest ideas from this or that notable designer in Paris. The trend of fashion is considered seriously, and the creators of styles are ranked with the authors of important works of art—which may be one reason why artists of a high order are more and more devoting their talents to developing and perfecting women's dress.

It is like a leisurely swing back to the Old-World days, when dress was the most absorbing interest in the life of a frivolous and overgroomed and wholly artificial society. Although it is a long sweep from the extreme severity of Colonial times to anything like the extravagances of the Continental beau monde, the present generation is arriving fast. If a certain desirable sense of proportion is maintained and the law of order and fitness obeyed the results will be most happy.

Return of Old Modes.

Some of the styles of early periods have great fascination for the modern woman of fashion. Curiously, those that have the greatest vogue are the extreme opposite of the modes that have startled the polite world for the last several years. The eccentricities of the Victorian age had little appeal to the woman who cares for grace and beauty. Any detail of the styles of that period makes its reappearance only as a clever couturier introduces it in his general scheme.

The bustle of 1880 was quite a different affair from the same motif shown in a 1925 model from one of the most illustrious houses at Paris. The crinolines of 1840 were impossible creations that made more distressing the distorted waistline of a painfully pinched-in bodice. But nothing in these, in the stiff panniers or the heavy trains, had any possibility of artistic adaptation. Each has been molded and reshaped over and over again in the endless search for novelty until it contains no further possibilities.

It is only in the tout ensemble that one catches a glimpse of reminiscent fashions, harmonized and modified often with the most delightful results.

Delightfully Youthful Version of One-Piece Paris Spring Frocks.

Erratic genius may flash a new conception, lacking the essentials of style and taste. It requires the poise of an artist to keep a fine balance of values in line and color, and the famous ones are those that present creations startling and nevertheless true.

An exceptionally chic woman who is a conspicuous example of the best form in dress stopped for a little on her way to dinner to answer a compliment paid to the frock she was wearing. She is tall, slim and patrician in bearing, and wears her clothes well. The gown she had on at this time was a Lanvin in shades of rose—not the delicate wild rose, or the La France rose, but the American Beauty shade. The foundation was made of stiff taffeta. The bodice was plain. The neck a modest ecolléte. Sleeves nonexistent, and the waistline marked at an almost grand point.

The skirt was the full gathered early Victorian, but without the crinoline or hoops. Over this was a top skirt of tulle, gathered full and crisp, the color a shade deeper than the taffeta foundation. The trimming scheme was interesting. A line of gilt paillettes finished the neck and the deep armholes. The skirt, veiled with the claret-colored illusion petticoat, was elaborated in the front with a large motif done in the paillettes, in crystal and pearl beads. A lavallière of diamonds, sapphires and rubies hung from a fine gold chain over the bodice, and the silk chestnut hair was brushed in wavy lines quite fearlessly back from a high, broad brow.

This vision referred to her dress as her favorite type, and said some engaging things about styles at the moment.

Predicts Great Changes.

"Great changes are near," she said, "and all in the direction of better things. This is a day of abbreviation in manner, speech and dress. There is no time for courtesy, for proper consideration of anybody or anything, and this idea dominates a woman's mood."

Coat of Rose Kashia Cloth; Dress of Sand Crepe de Chine.

and taste in the selection of her clothes. It is a day of elimination of unnecessary detail, of artificialities.

"For several seasons we have been content with a swathing length of crepe or silk, abbreviated at the top, also at the bottom, and draped to show the figure according to the non-Occidental ideas. We have gone the limit, and with the question of morale not considered. A fickle and more or less moral audience desires the opposite, meaning modest, picturesque clothes. One reason that the 'period' gown appeals to me is that it makes for modesty. It is decorative, quaint, dignified and dashing as a frock can be, all at once. Still it is demure in a way. Credit is due to the designer having put this type of frock forward, season after season, until now it has a recognized vogue and is a regular mode."

In its latest adaptations the period gown is presented by both French and American designers with striking arrangement of lines and in some enchanting colors. Yellow is the latest phase in color and is shown in countless lovely variants. A clear bright amber taffeta, the usual bouffant skirt and plain basque, has motifs of gilt embroidery set at intervals on the skirt, which is veiled with an overskirt of plain tulle in a deeper shade of yellow, almost bronze.

New and Winsome Shades.

One model in corn-yellow silk divides the length of the skirt with a diagonal piece of orange taffeta, carrying the line across the bodice and over one shoulder. A piping of the deeper shade finishes skirt, neck and armholes, and a cluster of marigolds in the two yellows, with gilt-tipped petals, is fashioned at one side of the waist.

New and lovely shades of blue are shown in the gowns of this type—lapis, periwinkle, hydrangea, hyacinth, delphinium, and more than there are names to fit. And some adorable things are done in all white, in frosty taffeta with clouds of tulle. One from the atelier of Madeleine Vionnet is caught at regular spaces with clusters of snowdrops, and another, designed by an American artist, is fringed with soft-stemmed white violets. These wide-skirted, quaint-bodied costumes invite countless fancies in embellishment, all of them intriguing. Such garments are not in any sense monopolizing the mode, but they are exceedingly popular at the moment and represent a distinguished reproduction.

Another new-old style that is increasing in popularity is the directoire. Its lines of generous diversity suggest more suitable gowns and wraps for afternoon and somewhat "dressy" street wear. But the narrow petticoat and the redingote of brocade or trimmed silk, along with rich detail, go into the making of some striking costumes for dinner, supper-dances and the after-the-play parties at the smart dance clubs.

The reverse of one fashion tendency is reflected in the comments of the up-to-date Parisian modistes who are making their evening dresses, especially the dance frocks, extremely short.

Czechoslovakian Claims Descent From Columbus

Rome.—Nitra, in Czechoslovakia, claims the distinction of having as one of its few inhabitants a direct descendant of Christopher Columbus. The bearer of the historic name of Rodolfo Colombo is a music instructor.

Rodolfo's father, Giovanni Colombo, was a major in an Austrian infantry regiment. In 1910 the major read in a Viennese newspaper a notice inserted by the executors of the defunct Spanish prince, Cristoforo Colombo of Veragua, a descendant of the navigator, inviting all the presumptive heirs to present their claims.

Giovanni was too poor to engage a lawyer to look after the affair, but succeeded himself in finding a certificate of baptism of the year 1712 which proved that one of his ancestors, Leopoldo Colombo, had been a member of the imperial guard. This certificate proved clearly the nobility of the family.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Columbus, O., July 20 (UP).—R. H. Kauffman, of Columbus, was removed from the office of secretary of the Ohio Tax commission today when the Lipp act became a law giving the commission control over its own employees.

Kauffman was appointed by the finance department which had controlled tax commission employees until today. No successor to the secretary has been named.

RUBBER CITY CENTENNIAL IN FULL SWAY*Celebration Lasts a Whole Week—Huge Homecoming and Reunion.

Akron, O., July 20 (UP).—Today is "Akron Day" at the Centennial celebration of the founding of this city. The celebration started Sunday, but today is the big day which actually opens festivities.

The city is decked in holiday array, ready to "strut its stuff" for the thousands of visitors attending the Centennial.

Exhibits of the city's earliest exploits and industries are being shown covering the development of the city from the time it was merely a little frontier town to the present day when it ranks as one of the greatest manufacturing cities in the country.

Parades, featuring floats by nearly every company and organization in the city, are the big features of the day. At night there will be a magnificent display of fireworks, with street carnivals and mardi-gras.

Tuesday will be "Youth's" day, followed by "Fraternal" day. The celebration closes July 25 with a huge homecoming and reunion.

BUSINESS MEN BARNUMIZED BY TWO WOMEN

"Posing as penniless, praying as members of a local church, and relating a series of fabrications calculated to touch the hearts of those who heard them, two women were exposed in their true light here Friday and were ordered out of the city with instruction never to return," says the Washington C. H. Herald.

It developed that when the women paid the bus driver for taking them from Circleville Thursday evening, that the younger one had a roll of bills.

The older woman, it was found, had been an inmate of the reformatory and that the younger one had been in jail in Portsmouth recently.

The description fits two women who were in this city last week and obtained some money from business people whom they Barnumized.

KEEPING WELL*HOW ARE YOUR CHILD'S TEETH?
DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

YOU want your boy or girl to be attractive and healthy and to get good marks in school, don't you?

Many factors combine to bring about these results, but one often overlooked is the condition of the child's teeth.

The bones of a child are soft and pliable and the habit of sucking the thumb, which many mothers permit to go unchecked, may cause a deformity of the mouth which will spoil the appearance for life. The thumb-sucking habit forces the jaw bones out of place, with the result that the upper front teeth are pushed outward and the lower ones backward until the entire face is deformed.

Usually, however, the "baby" teeth are straight and pretty. They are small and the jaws are large enough for them. It is the second teeth that commonly are not right. If they come in crooked, it is generally because the jaws are not large enough to accommodate them. Sometimes the jaws are stunted because they have not had enough exercise in chewing solid food. Or the jaw development may have been retarded because the child is poorly nourished. If the general development of the child is not good, the jaw and tooth development is likely to be poor and if the jaw bones are not sufficiently developed, the teeth will be crowded out of their normal position so that the upper and lower teeth do not meet in order to bite and chew properly. The inability to chew the food thoroughly will result in indigestion and the crooked, crowded teeth give the child an unattractive appearance which may be so great as to be a positive deformity. How many children have you seen who would have been pretty but for teeth that were crooked or that protruded or that were decayed?

In these days of keen competition in every line of effort, each individual needs every advantage and equipment in the way of ability and appearance in order to hold his own and make his way in the world. It is a crime to allow a child to grow up with a physical handicap that can be corrected. The handicap of bad teeth and deformed face can, in most cases, be overcome.

See that your child makes regular visits to the dentist and see that his instructions are obeyed. Don't make it possible for your child when grown to blame you for an unattractive face, for poor school or business records, or for poor health, if these defects may be the results of a condition so easily remedied as bad teeth.

Famous Ring

The museum of Versailles now has the ring with which M. Clemenceau sealed the famous treaty in 1919, and it is a ring that had an interesting history even before that. Charles Naundorff, who maintained that he was Louis XVII of France, gave it to Jules Favre, who became foreign minister, and M. Favre used it to seal the armistice of 1871 at Versailles, because Bismarck was unwilling to wait until the state seal could be brought from Paris.—Youth's Companion.

"EVOLUTION"

By James Langdon Smith

When you were a Tadpole and I was a Fish,
In the Paleozoic time,
And side by side on the ebbing tide
We sprawled through the ooze and slime,
Or skittered with many a caudal flip
Through the depths of the Cambrian fen,
My heart was rife with the joy of life,
For I loved you even then.Mindless we lived and mindless we loved,
And mindless at last we died;
And deep in the rift of the Caradoc drift
We slumbered side by side.
The world turned on in the lathe of time,
The hot lands heaved amain,
Till we caught our breath from the womb of death,
And crept into light again.We were Amphibians, scaled and tailed,
And drab as a dead man's hand;
We coiled at ease 'neath the dripping trees,
Or trailed through the mud and sand,
Croaking and blind, with our three-clawed feet
Writing a language dumb,
With never a spark in the empty dark
To hint at a life to come.Yet happy we lived, an happy we loved,
An happy we died once more;
Our forms were rolled in the clinging mold
Of a Necromean shore,
The eons came, and the eons fled,
And the sleep that wrapped us fast
Was riven away in a newer day,
And the night of death was past.Then light and swift through the Jungle trees
We swung in our airy flights,
Or breathed in the balms of the fronded palms,
In the hush of the moonless nights
And oh! what beautiful years were these,
When our hearts clung each to each;
When life was filled and our senses thrilled
In the first faint dawn of speech.Thus life by life, and love by love,
We passed through the cycles strange,
And breath by breath, and death by death,
We followed the chain of change,
Till there came a time in the law of life
When over the nursing sod
The shadows broke, and the soul awoke
In a strange, dim dream of God.I was thewed like an Auroch bull,
And tasked like the great Cave Bear;
And you, my sweet, from head to feet,
Were gowned in your glorious hair.
Deep in the gloom of a fireless cave,
When the night fell o'er the plain,
And the moon hung red o'er the river bed,
We mumbled the bones of the slain.I flaked a flint to a cutting edge,
And shaped it with brutish craft;
I broke a shank from the woodland dank,
And fette it head and haft.
Then I hid me close to the ready tarn,
Where the Mammoth came to drink;
Through brawn and bone I drove the stone,
And slew him upon the brink.Loud I howled through the moonlit wastes,
Loud answered our kith and kin;
From west to east to the crimson feast
The clan came trooping in.
O'er joint and gristle and padded hoof
We fought and clawed and tore,
And cheek by jowl, with many a growl,
We talked the marvel o'er.I carved that fight on a reindeer bone
With rude and hairy hand,
I pictured his fall on the cavern wall
That men might understand.
For we lived by blood, and the right of might,
Ere human laws were drawn,
And the Age of Sin did not begin
Till our brutal tusks were gone.And that was a million years ago,
In a time that no man knows;
Yet here tonight in the mellow light
We sit at Delmonico's.
Your eyes are deep as the Devon springs,
Your hair is dark as jet;
Your years are few, your life is new,
Your soul untried, and yet—Our trail is on the Kimmeridge clay,
And the scarp of the Purbeck flags,
We have left our bones in the Bagshot stone,
And deep in the Coraline crags;
Our love is old, our lives are old,
And death shall come amain.
Should it come today, what man may say
We shall not live again?God wrought our souls from the Tremadoc beds
And furnished them wings to fly;
He sowed our spawn in the world's dim dawn,
And I know that it shall not die,
Though cities have sprung above the graves
Where the crook-boned men made war,
And the ox-wain creaks o'er the buried caves
Where the mummied Mammoths are.
Then, as we linger at luncheon here,
O'er many a dainty dish,
Let us drink anew to the time when you
Were a Tadpole and I was a Fish.More Desirable

The first motion picture ever to play on Broadway at five dollars a seat—that's the reputation "Madame Sans Gene," hailed as Gloria Swanson's masterpiece, made for itself at its opening performance in New York. Moreover, the theater was packed to the rafters for the occasion, with hundreds of unsuccessful applicants for seats and a crowd of several thousands giving the police a tussle outside the theater in their efforts to get into the place and also to catch a glimpse of Miss Swanson and her French nobleman husband, the Marquis de la Falaise de la Coudrave.
Even for Gloria Swanson, whose screen efforts are always acted in elaborate settings and gowns, "Madame Sans Gene" is an unusually luxurious production. It was filmed in France and the backgrounds include the palaces at Versailles, Fontainebleau and Compiègne, spots hitherto forbidden to motion picture directors. Gloria is seen sleeping in the actual golden bed of Marie Antoinette, flirting in the gardens where that unfortunate queen conducted her amorous intrigues, and coquetting with Napoleon (Emile Drain) in the actual private chamber which the real Napoleon occupied. The results are said to be startlingly realistic in the extreme.
In "Madame Sans Gene" (Madame Devil-May-Care), Miss Swanson has the role of the witty, flirtatious little French laundress, who used to wash Napoleon's shirts for him, when he was an impecunious corporal, who married one of Napoleon's sergeants, and who was swept by the French Revolution into the title of duchess and residence in Napoleon's court, where she alternately scandalized and sent into hilarious laughter the haughty lords and ladies, ending by saving the empress' honor and winning for herself Napoleon's eternal gratitude.
Charles de Roche, the Pharaoh of Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments," heads the cast playing in support of Miss Swanson. The picture was directed by Leonce Perret from Forrest Halsey's adaptation of the stage play by Victorien Sardou and Emile Moreau. Opening Monday at the Met theater.

Rate Schedules of Ohio Bell Telephone May be Investigated.

Columbus, O., July 20 (UP).—Eight acts passed by the last legislature, several of them over the veto of Governor Donahey, became laws today when the ninety day referendum period expired. These include the McDonald real estate reappraisal bill, one of the Republican majority taxation program measures.
One hundred and fifty thousand dollars become available for the public utilities commission investigation of the rate schedules of the Ohio Bell Telephone company, and officials issuing automobile licenses begin getting a fifteen cent fee on each license issued.
Other new laws becoming effective today include: the Dodd act, authorizing levies for operating purposes; the Vorys compulsory budget act; Dempsey corporation franchise tax; Kreuger act, regulating the issuance of bonds by political subdivisions; and the law giving the counties authority to establish adult probation departments.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The Pythian Sisters, of Major Temple, held a picnic at Scippo park Sunday and nearly one hundred members were present. They had an ideal day for their outing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bolenbaugh and daughter, Ferne, of Kinderhook, and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Schwarz were dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. G. G. Leist Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Columbus Alten entertained in a delightful manner Wednesday afternoon at their home on East Sixth Avenue in honor of the sixth birthday anniversary of their little daughter Lucile.

The guests were invited from three until six o'clock and during these hours various games and contests were enjoyed. At a seasonable time, a lovely two course luncheon was served.

The color scheme of pink and white was used in the decorations, sweet peas and snapdragons being used throughout the rooms. The festal board was centered with a large birthday cake with six candles and pink and white streamers were arranged to each of the four corners of the table. The favors were pink baskets filled with candy.

Those enjoying the event were Eleanor Miller, of Circleville; Clara Anspach, Helen Stalter, Ruth Stalter, Joan McFee, Janet Mallory, Esther Crook, Nancy Daugherty, Betty Rowe, Ruth Ellen Laessle, Mariland Miller, Geneva Delp, Genevieve Delp; Barbara Blake, Anna Kathryn Alten, Bobbie Alten, Billy Miller and the guest of honor, Lucille Alten.

Mrs. Alten was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Russell Miller of Circleville, Mrs. James Russell and Mrs. Louis Delp.—Lancaster Eagle.

Nature's Protection.
Evolution has taught the citrus plants that a tiny drop of oil thrown right will often cover up the mold spores' skin and fill the insect's breathing pores. Oranges, lemons, limes, and kindred fruits are armed with rank, ill-smelling sacs of oil, set ready to deluge the invader of the rind. Get an orange and cut its skin. Notice the little fountains of spray that shoot up before the knife, filling the air with the odor of orange. Examine a piece of cut rind with a hand lens. A waxy layer is in contact with the air, beneath it lies a mass of spongy cells, and in the sponge are many large bottle-like oil vessels. Their mouths open outward through minute pores. In nature they are turgid and full of oil. When anything disturbs their mouths they burst, driving the oil out in a spurt. Let the light fall brightly on the cells and notice their smooth, greasy walls. Only insects and parasitic plants that had been evolved to meet it would ever live to tell of being shot with orange oil.

Old Pilgrim Documents.
In connection with the tercentenary of the arrival of the Mayflower and the landing of the Pilgrims in America, a careful search has been carried on by scholars in Holland to discover records of the life of the Puritans while in that country. One of the most interesting of the discoveries is a statement by King James of England made through his ambassador, in which he denounces the Pilgrims as "ill-conditioned Brownists, not submissive to king hierarchy—banished men, who deserve no sympathy." Other documents show that the Pilgrims, while in Holland, learned many practical things which had great influence on the history of America, such as the accountability of magistrates to the people; the value of popular election whether of ministers or magistrates; the registration of deeds and mortgages; the personal care of the poor; the duty and the privilege of the freedom of the press.—Boys' Life.

KING OF THE RODEOS

(Copyright by R. R. Doubleday.)

Tex Austin, a name that is known in every locality in the country where horses are bred or cattle raised. Such is the man who will draw on his years of experience to manage the Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo to be held for nine days, beginning August 15.

"King of the Rodeo" is the title Austin has won. Born in the great state for which he was named, he was raised in the atmosphere of the range. He participated in the thrilling deeds of the famous contests of the Far West and then became a ranchman himself. Wherever the roundups have been staged, Austin's name has become synonymous with the cowboy sport. In the effort to perpetuate the spirit of the West, he managed and directed numberless rodeos in the West, also giving the East its first thrill from cowboy contests. Then, spreading the fame of Uncle Sam further, he put on the first international rodeo at Wembley, England, under the auspices of the British government.

DEATH TAXES AS BUSINESS KILLERS

Assistant Treasury Secretary Tells Fable of Fate of Two Successful Men.

Men cannot be expected to continue to work, day after day, increasing the productivity of this country and benefiting others, if they know that on death the major portion of their earnings will be dissipated in Federal estate and state inheritance taxes, declares Charles S. Dewey, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in the American Bankers Association Journal. He says:

"I am going to relate a fable in terms of modern business conditions. John Henry and Walter Brown were aggressive, hard-working men, and each had started business for himself."

"At the time this history opens, John Henry had just died, leaving his entire estate to his son, John Henry, Jr., and had appointed his old friend, Walter Brown, as executor. Prior to his death John Henry had moved to California, leaving his business in the hands of his son under whom it had continued to make excellent headway. The father had been doing a little speculating in oil. This venture had not proved successful and he was indebted in the sum of $500,000."

"Executor Walter Brown, on examination of the estate, found the following situation:

Capital stock of Henry & Co., Inc., a Michigan Corp. .... $5,000,000
Personal debts due banks ..... 500,000

"Walter Brown soon made the unpleasant discovery that in addition to the personal indebtedness of $500,000, and administration expenses of $250,000, the following death duties must be paid:

Federal estate tax ..... $497,500
California inheritance tax ..... 153,750
Michigan inheritance tax ..... 122,000

Total ..... $1,205,250

"Added to the personal debt and administration expenses, this made a grand total liability of $1,955,250. The year was 1920. Money was tight. Other manufacturing companies in the same line which might have been interested in a purchase had no money for extensions nor were the banks in a position to handle a loan of this type. Here was a most successful business, built up from small beginnings by one man and carried on to further successes by his son, about to be placed under the hammer."

"Is there any justice in taxation that may force a man and his family to lose the fruits of his entire life's labor, and permit others to benefit? As a last resort, Henry, Jr., was forced into a bond issue. A loan, to settle the debts, administration expenses and death duties, of $2,250,000 was negotiated, upon the following basis:

"The capital stock of the company was left at $5,000,000 represented by 50,000 shares. First mortgage 8 per cent bonds were offered the public with a bonus of two shares of stock with each $1,000 bond. The banker, to protect his bond customers, kept 30,000 shares to assure control of management, and John Henry, Jr., received the balance of 15,500 shares. John now has a good job as general manager of his father's old company, but they do not pay him very much."

"Now we must return to Walter Brown, executor of John Henry, Sr. Walter had always kept close to his own manufacturing business. The more he considered his own situation, the more closely it seemed to him to resemble that of his old friend."

"He therefore called a lawyer and made a complete schedule of his assets, requesting that an estimate of administration expenses and death duties be made. The schedule of assets was as follows:

Capital stock, Walter Brown Co., Mich. Corp. .... $4,000,000
California real estate ..... 1,000,000
Tax-exempt bonds, Minn., Mont. and Colo. .... 500,000

Total ..... $5,500,000

"Within a few days Mr. Brown's lawyer made the following report:

Debts and admin. expenses ..... $500,000
Fed. estate tax ..... $710,425
Cal. inheritance tax ..... 448,194
Mich. inheritance tax ..... 269,409
Minn. inheritance tax ..... 4,238
Mont. inheritance tax ..... 4,186
Colo. inheritance tax ..... 2,700

Total death duties ..... $1,425,703

Total expenses ..... $1,925,703

"On this basis the estate suffered a reduction from $5,500,000 to approximately $3,574,000, thus wiping out all assets except the corporate stock and placing a heavy loan on that. Mr. Brown had one son and, as he thought of John Henry, Jr., tolling away with little hope of opportunity he determined that he would not subject his own son to the same tribulations."

"Boom times having come, there was no difficulty obtaining a purchaser for Walter Brown & Co., and the California real estate was sold at a good price. The whole was invested in tax-exempt bonds which yielded a very safe return of about 4½ per cent. Walter Brown then moved his legal residence to the more friendly climate of Florida, where state inheritance and income taxes are forbidden."

"The country suffers by the loss of effort which Walter Brown might have continued to expend under a more intelligent system of taxation. We must reform the tax system in such a way that business and industry shall not be hampered. We must make sure that American citizens shall not be deprived of the incentive to work and accumulate and that this country shall not cease to be a land of opportunity. A tax system which discourages initiative cannot be the right system for America."

STOP WASTING--OR FACE PAUPERISM

By WILLIAM E. KNOX
President, American Bankers Association

William E. Knox

The American standard of living, the highest in the world, came easily in the past from the abundance of our natural wealth, but it can be maintained in the future only by drastic national economy in the use of that wealth. We have grown up to our resources. We can not afford to waste them any longer. Industrially we have got to stop wasting, but even more so have we got to stop the wastefulness of our personal habits.

The paramount challenge to education in America today calls for the effective teaching of personal economics—for education in the management of personal incomes so that they will give every individual a good living during his productive years and provide certain security for the non-productive years of his old age.

Forty-four million people, two-fifths of our population, are gainfully employed in the United States, earning more than $60,000,000,000 annually. The management of the expenditure of this $60,000,000,000 annual pay check is the biggest and most important business in America. It has been estimated that upwards of $10,000,000,000 of this personal income is wasted annually. More than a billion, it is estimated, disappears in foolish speculation in fake schemes.

The spirit of waste in America is a heritage of the past, but today the country has more than one hundred and fourteen million people to support and no nation's resources can withstand extravagance indefinitely. An increase in population will mean a reduced average of personal wealth unless intelligent management maintains a progressively more economic utilization of the national income.

To teach our people this is the task of education and it can not begin to meet the task a moment too soon. The advance of civilization makes man's existence a more and more serious business. Human responsibilities and duties increase each year. If progress has made life more abundant it has also made it more expensive. It is impossible for most men to increase their real wages. Therefore they must meet their added responsibilities out of more economic employment of what they get.

The schools must teach our young people so to manage their own personal affairs as to insure that they will lead lives that have an economic worth to society and to themselves. Business must provide plans for its workers to enable them not only to earn but also to save so that the teaching of the schools will not prove an illusion in practice. Do these things and we will have no pauperism in America. Neglect to do them and we will ultimately develop pauperism,—a nation's worst social crime.

WHEN GREEK
MEETS GREEK

By HAROLD HOWLAND

AS THE girl waited for the gate to open for the New Canaan express which was to carry her into the wintry wilds of Connecticut she was thinking testily. How stupid it was to travel alone! How dull the people who waited for trains always looked! Why didn't some nice masculine thing breeze up and hail her with "Hel-lo, Nancy Lee, are you going to the Marvins' too?" Why couldn't she ever have any luck?

Like that fellow just ahead of her. How nice to have somebody come along and at least say good-by cheerfully. She listened enviously.

"Hel-lo, Billy Bolter! Helen made me bring you her love. One of the kids was sick—Jinks, I believe—or she'd have come herself. She wanted to send you a kiss, but I said that I'd be fried in oil before I'd kiss a man good-by in the Grand Central, even for the best sister-in-law that a man ever made the mistake of not marrying himself. So all you'll get from me is a warning."

Her discontent had lost one of its edge as she settled into her seat after depositing her neat suitcase, with the bold initials "N. L." on its end, in the rack above. Pickles and poison pie!

Suddenly she turned with a start. The rather nice voice was saying, "I beg your pardon, but is it possible that you are Norah Lang?"

As she looked into the not bad-looking face the provocative little smile that flickered about her eyes would have gleamed to any of the masculine bits of wreckage that strewed the shores of her brief but glorious past like the red lamp of danger.

A firm little hand went out toward him.

"Why, Billy Bolter, what are you doing here? Won't you sit down?"

For a moment the mouth in the not bad-looking face opened inanely. Then it closed in a firm line and Billy Bolter sat down.

"How did you know who I was?" said the girl. "Had Helen told you about me? Poor Helen! It's hard on her having Jinks so sick. If it weren't for Frank I don't know what she'd do. Do you?"

"No, I don't," admitted the rather nice voice. "Of course there's Bob. As a husband he's not bad."

"Husbands don't count," asserted the girl. "They're too—married, aren't they?"

"Then you don't want a husband, I judge?" said Billy, tentatively.

"Of course I do!" retorted the girl. "How else could a girl get a brother-in-law like Frank?"

"Is that all you would want a husband for?" The question sounded a trifle anxious.

"What would you want a wife for?" the girl countered. "Or don't you want one?"

"I should say I do!" Billy replied with conviction. "That's what I'm here for!"

"You mean you're starting out on this cold, bleak trip on purpose to get a wife?" the girl demanded.

"Oh, no," was the reply. "I started out to go skiing. But now I've decided to get a wife."

"Before you get back?" asked the girl.

"Long before, I hope." The rather nice voice grew just a little nicer. "I think I'll lose no time."

"Oh, you do?" The girl's voice had a shade of defiance. "How far are you going?"

"As far as I need to," was the prompt reply. "To get her, I mean."

The not bad-looking face was smiling directly into hers and, for perhaps the first time within the memory of man, the girl flushed a little disconcertedly.

"But where are you going?" The subject seemed safer.

"New Canaan," was the cheerful reply. "To the Marvins'."

"You're not!" The girl's voice was a trifle shaky.

"Oh, yes. Aren't you?" said Billy. "They asked me up there especially to meet Norah Lang. In fact, they dared me to come. They said nobody had failed to fall for her yet."

"Of course you're sure you won't," said the girl, with a distinct chill in her voice. "Well, I hope you will."

"I have," said Billy Bolter.

"Oh, no," said the girl decidedly. "You only think you have."

Hours pass swiftly when the ancient —and not always honorable—game is under way. New Canaan was not nearly so welcome as two travelers had expected it to be when they set out.

As they stepped to the platform a girl and a man met them.

"Hello, Norah!" said the girl of the train to the girl of the platform.

"Hello, Jimmie!" said the man of the platform to the man of the train.

The travelers, with scant courtesy for their welcome, faced each other.

"Aren't you Norah Lang?" demanded the man.

"Aren't you Billy Bolter?" demanded the girl.

"I'm Norah Lang," said the girl of the platform. "She's Nancy Lee."

"Nobody calls him Billy Bolter except Frank and Helen," said the man of the platform. "We've got two cutters here. Jimmie, will you drive Miss Lang? I'll take Miss Lee."

Billy Bolter turned his not bad-looking face definitely to the girl of the train and, in his quite nice voice said, "I'm taking Nancy."

"Yes, Jimmie," said Nancy Lee.

Radio Relief Record Feat

What is considered a record radio feat in time of disaster was achieved by WLS, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station, Chicago, during the tornado which spread ruin and death over the states of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee. When the first news of the disaster reached WLS, George D. Hay, the "Solemn Old Judge," announcer, Ford and Glenn and others of the staff started pleas for aid. For ten days these appeals through the air for aid were made night and day. In a few hours $11,000 was collected. This was matched at once by a $10,000 contribution by Sears-Roebuck & Co. When the final returns were tabulated it showed a total of $214,401.74. It is estimated that more than 50,000 individuals and organizations contributed. Included in the list were 312 Sunday schools and other church organizations; 120 villages and cities as units; 258 public schools; 600 clubs and fraternal organizations; 774 firms and their employees. It was called the "WLS Listeners' Relief Fund," of which E. H. Powell was chairman. Of the fund $125,000 was given to the Chicago Association of Commerce-Red Cross Relief committee; $25,000 to the "Grubstake committee" of the Illinois Agricultural Association; $28,771.45 to the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation; and $5,000 each to the governors of Kentucky and Tennessee. In addition, Samuel R. Guard, director of the Foundation, traversed the tornado-torn areas in an airplane, and established Rural Relief stations, designed to give special aid to the farmers, to help them rebuild their homes and plow and plant their land.

His Teeth in His Lungs
Send Man to Hospitals

New York.—Attacked by a violent spell of coughing, Conrad Wimler, 187 Thirty-second street, Brooklyn, swallowed his upper teeth. His wife took him to Norwegian hospital, but physicians there were unable to locate the plate and suggested that Wimler return home until later, when an X-ray could be taken and the teeth removed.

He returned home, but the pain became so intense that his wife took him to the Brooklyn Eye and Ear hospital. Physicians there said the work would require specialists and advised him to go home and wait until 9 o'clock. Wimler did.

At 9 o'clock he again appeared, so weak that he was put to bed while the pulmonary region was X-rayed. Late that night the plate with a full set of teeth was removed by Dr. John Auwerda, fourteen hours after Wimler had swallowed them. Neither the plate nor Wimler's throat were injured.

Dynamite Fishing

Two young men while fishing near Melbourne, Australia, recently tried to set off a bottle of dynamite and kill scores of fish. They forgot to put a weight on the bottle and their dog jumped in after it. As the fuse was slowly burning down the fishermen started to run, but the faster they ran the faster the dog and dynamite came after them. The bottle exploded about 25 feet from them and the dog disappeared.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON HAVING MONEY ON HAND

"Aunt, why is it such a good thing to have cash in the bank?" asked Jane of Aunt Emmy. "Mr. Wilkins was talking to father yesterday and he said that every one ought to have a certain amount of cash on hand."

"He meant that if you keep some of your money in the bank where it can be had any time you might be able to use it to excellent advantage," said Aunt Emmy. "Every now and then a good opportunity presents itself to make a nice profit in some business deal if you only have the cash on hand so you can act quickly. Don't you remember about that quarrel the Brown brothers had over their inheritance and to settle it sold that house in Center Street? Old Peter Haskins bought it in for $3,000 and the next week sold it for $4,200. If he hadn't had the cash on hand he never could have made that handsome profit."

"Yes, Aunt, that's all right for Mr. Haskins, but I'm never likely to have $3,000 or $4,000 on hand."

"Well there are other little ways to make a profit," said Aunt Emmy. "For instance, you can always benefit by cash discounts. That is, if some one asks you to pay, say $100 for a thing, you can usually get it for less, sometimes ten per cent less, if you pay at once in cash. You always should have some of your money in cash so that you can take advantage of golden opportunities and cash discounts."—A. B. Aymes.

BANKERS HELP

Mason County, Mich., bankers are backing the county move to replace scrub stock with purebred cattle. The plan as outlined by the county agent is to purchase young purebred sires and place them wherever a farmer is found who is willing to undertake the proposition. The bankers will advance the purchase price and take a note for one year without interest. The idea is to make it as easy as possible for the farmers to procure thoroughbreds.

Best Coating for Iron

It entirely impervious, either tin or zinc coatings will protect iron. As, however, such coatings are almost invariably porous or are likely to be penetrated by abrasion, the zinc coatings furnish better protection because the exposed iron does not rust as long as zinc is present in close proximity. Tin coatings, on the other hand, accelerate the corrosion of any exposed iron.

Why Spring Cleaning

The idea of spring cleaning came to the moderns by way of the Dutch people, who borrowed it from the ancient Jews. Cleaning up was a custom associated with the celebration of the passover, which falls about the same time as Easter. The first mention of spring cleaning in the English language appears to have been in the writings of Sir Thomas More, the famous lord chancellor, who was beheaded by Henry VIII.

Egyptian Sphinxes

The sphinxes were not the toms of kings. Archeologists are of the opinion that they were employed to guard the approach to a temple. According to the inscriptions of the eighteenth dynasty in the shrine between the paws of the Great Sphinx it represented the Sun God Harmachis. In many cases the heads of sphinxes were royal portraits.

DO BIG MAIL ORDER BUSINESS IN LIQUOR

NEW YORK RAID EXPOSES THE NAMES OF MANY CUSTOMERS

Twenty Thousand Orders for Whisky, Champagne, Wines and Cordials—Many Shipments to Columbus, Cincinnati and Cleveland—Corruption in Dry Law Enforcement—Railroad Officials Assisting Bootleggers

The tracing of liquor shipments to all parts of the country by mail-order bootleggers, whose New York Broadway offices were raided Friday, will result in many arrests and seizures, it was said by Emery R. Buckner, the United States attorney.

Meanwhile Mr. Buckner has ordered his entire staff of prohibition assistants carefully to scan books and files kept by the concern, in preparation for a sweeping John Doe investigation.

Records of its business transactions confiscated in the company's suite of offices at 1123 Broadway revealed that it has filled more than 20,000 orders for whisky, champagne, assorted wines and cordials, much of which had been shipped to Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and other Ohio cities.

The keys to wardrobe trunks in which the contraband was shipped by express, were sent ahead by mail to the company's customers. William Gilbert, general prohibition agent, whose investigations in the last two months took him to the Pacific coast and from Detroit and New Orleans, reported to Mr. Buckner that at least forty solicitors were employed to obtain orders for liquor. They served either as local agents or traveling salesmen, visiting cities in certain regions allotted to them as their exclusive territory.

These solicitors advertised the Broadway firm's wares in hinterland cities as "high seas liquor," according to Gilbert.

Mr. Buckner said an analysis has not been made yet of any of the liquor seized in Friday's raid, but a large supply of counterfeit revenue stamps was found, indicating that domestic rye whisky shipped by the mail order house was "cut" and resealed with these fake strips.

Many of the thousands of customers on the concern's books are prominent in the political, social and professional life of their communities, the officers say. None of the names are to be made public at present.

The largest anti-liquor fleet assembled off the northeast coast since the sensational blockade of the New York harbor Saturday patrolled off the summer White House at Swampscott, Massachusetts, to prevent a liquor landing.

Four of the fastest naval destroyers; the McCall, Beale, Patterson and Cummings joined the large fleet of smaller patrol boats.

An airplane flies from the Boston airdrome daily, locates the liquor fleet off shore and drops messages to the patrol on its return.

For the second timesince his arrival at Swampscott, President Coolidge could sit on the white court veranda and see plainly the ships of the patrol fleet darting back and forth.

An augmented rum fleet was reported to be twenty miles off shore awaiting fast motor boats to come out, buy a large supply and then attempt to run the gauntlet of the dry fleet. The schooners; Grace, Ruby and Montrose believed to be liquor laden, were picked off Cape Anne, while the James W. Parker was anchored off the Fippennies Ledge. Reports that other liquor ships had arrived in the row flashed thru coast guard circles.

New evidence of corruption in the enforcement of prohibition has been disclosed to federal authorities in numerous instances as a result of the efforts of Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, to rebuild the enforcement system.

The disclosures came in reports from United States attorneys to the department of justice, which had requested of them a statement, detailing for their confidential information an accurate perspective of conditions within the jurisdiction of each prosecuting officer.

While department officials declined to discuss the contents of the reports except in a general way, the information contained in certain of them was said to be alarming and indicative of a need for concerted federal and state action.

No official would hint, however, as to the possible course of the federal government, but the statement was made by a high department of justice official that the department has received no funds from congress with which to make such investigations.

On department of justice officials who studied the reports, the deepest impression was made by the general inference that state and local authorities were not cooperating with federal officials in a majority of cases.

Certain of the attorneys felt the federal government was playing a lone hand in their jurisdictions. On the other hand, it was explained that "fine help" was accorded to the government officers in many other instances, and that where such help was had the dry law well enforced.

It was also shown that a number of federal prohibition agents were winking at violations. It was indicated that Mr. Andrews would receive the names of agents to whom suspicion was attached in the reports and their services ended when the reorganization becomes effective.

Railroads were mentioned and officials made no effort to conceal their belief that minor rail officials were willing to assist in moving the contraband.

A YOUNG BOY DROWNED IN DARBY CREEK

Lloyd Shepherd, of Columbus, Unable to Swim Lost His Life Saturday.

Lloyd, the fourteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Shepherd, of East Main street, Columbus, lost his life in Darby creek, on the farm of Abe J. Williams in Jackson township, Saturday afternoon about three o'clock.

The boy and his sister, Lucile Shepherd, have been staying at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cordray, this summer. The lad, in company with three other boys; Clark Kinser, Wayne Stewart and Herman Clifton, started for the creek after dinner to go swimming. The swimming hole where the tragedy occurred is about eight feet. Can you swim? "the other boys asked Shepherd. "No," he replied. "Well, you better keep out, it's deep in here," they said, but the temptation was too great. He soon had his clothing off and inside a few moments went to a watery grave.

The three boys did their utmost to save the lad, but were not successful. The coronor was notified and Justice E. C. Fricke, as acting coronor viewed the body.

The drowned boy is a relative of Mrs. Lillian Himrod, of East Main street.

When the accident happened the boy's father was in this city and he at once went to the scene of the accident. The body was taken to his home in Columbus.

ELGAR BARRERE SEVERELY HURT IN ACCIDENT

Both Bones Broken in Right Leg When Automobiles Come Together.

Elgar Barrere, senior member of the firm of Barrere & Nickerson, was seriously injured Sunday morning one mile north of Chillicothe on the Columbus pike, when the car he was driving south collided with a car coming north.

It seems that Mr. Barrere, who drives a Hupp car, was trailing another southbound auto. The car ahead stopped and in order to avoid running into it, Mr. Barrere started to drive around and in doing so, he ran into another car headed north. The impact was so great that Mr. Barrere was thrown against the dash of his car and both bones in his right leg were broken below the knee. The car in which he was riding was completely turned around, ran thru a fence into a field and headed toward the north.

The radiator of the car was smashed and the frame was bent. It is not known whether the engine escaped injury, but the car is a bad looking wreck.

The other car was owned by a Mr. Douglass, of Columbus, who was considerably cut and bruised, but no bones were broken. The injured men were removed to the City hospital in Chillicothe. Dr. Patton, of Chillicothe, in attending Mr. Barrere's injuries. His wife, who was a guest of Mrs. Spetnagle, is at his bedside.

BLENN MOGAN KILLED WHEN CAR HIT POLE

Lost Control of Machine When Descending Hill -- Death Came Instantly.

Blenn Mogan, son of John Mogan, of North Scioto street, was instantly killed Saturday afternoon while driving a seven ton truck down a hill near Lancaster.

The Lancaster Daily Eagle gives the following account of the accident: "Blenn Mogan was instantly killed at 2:30 Saturday afternoon when the truck he was driving for the Brewster & Brewer company crashed into a telephone pole at the foot of Bush hill, just north of Lancaster on the Columbus pike. Mogan's head was crushed and his features mashed beyond recognition.

"Those who witnessed the accident aver that Mogan was traveling at a rate of forty-five or fifty miles. He lost control of the machine descending the incline and the huge seven ton truck left the road, crashed thru the pole and landed fifty feet away in the field, after turning over several times. Mogan's lifeless body was thrown into the ditch by the road. It is believed his head was crushed using one of the turns of the catapulting truck.

"The victim of the accident resided at Sharp's rooming house on Locust street during his employment here with Brewster & Brewer who are paying South Broad street."

The deceased was born in this city August 17, 1904, and was the son of John and Ida Lindsey Mogan. The young man was an industrious young fellow and well liked and had a host of friends. He was a member of the Circleville Athletic club, basketball team and Motor Transport Corps, No. 145.

He leaves besides his parents, four brothers and two sisters. They are Timothy, Wayne, Bernard and Joseph Mogan; Mrs. Ray Henry, of Columbus and Mrs. Keziah Cummins, of Urbana.

The funeral services will be held at St. Joseph's church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Robert Lee Baird will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery.

The pallbearers will be Dick Robinson, Arthur Steele, Elliott Mason, John Kirwin, Robert Palm and James Gatrell, members of the C. A. C. basketball team.

DELIGHTFUL JOURNEY TO ENCAMPMENT

Pickaway County People Attend Triennial Conclave at Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Colwell, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Rife, Mr. and Mrs. J. Chester Peters and son, Joseph, leave Tuesday on the Knight-Templar special over the New York Central railroad to Seattle, Washington, to attend the thirty-sixth triennial conclave of the grand encampment of Templars which opens July 27.

The excursion will be composed of two special trains of sixteen cars. From Chicago, the trains will be routed northwest thru the Dakotas to Winnipeg, Canada, where the Canadian Pacific will take the party to Vancouver and Seattle.

On the return trip the party will visit Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, the Grand Canyon, Albuquerque, Colorado Springs, Denver, Kansas City and Chicago. The trip will be made in twenty-one days.

Healthful Drinks
for Children

EVERY child should have at least a quart of milk a day. But sometimes it is hard to get children to drink plain milk. However it can be made tempting and the food value increased by adding a rich cream malt food with that delicious chocolate flavor children love. The malt is very easily digested and assists in the digestion of other foods. This malted chocolate comes in air-tight tin cans which protect its natural qualities during its trip from the packer to the pantry.

To make a cool, healthful drink, pour a glass of cold milk into a shaker, or a glass jar or milk bottle, if you have no shaker. Add two or three heaping teaspoonsful of the malted chocolate on top of the milk. Cap tight and shake well. The children will not only delight in the drink, but in the process of making and shaking. For very young children, use only one teaspoonful of the malted chocolate. It may be served hot or cold.

History.

The stories of Alexander and Caesar, further than they instruct us in the art of living well, and furnish us with observations of wisdom and prudence, are not one whit to be preferred to the history of Robin Hood, or the Seven Wise Masters. I do not deny but history is very useful, and very instructive of human life; but if it be studied only for the reputation of being a historian, it is a very empty thing; and he that can tell all the particulars of Herodotus and Plutarch, Curtius and Livy, without making any other use of them, may be an ignorant man with a good memory, and with all his pains, hath only filled his head with Christmas tales.—John Locke

SAVE THEM

Circleville, Ohio, R. F. D. 1, Aug. 26, 1924.
MR. F. L. FICKARDT:
All spring I have been having trouble with my flock, both young and old. During July I lost about 100. Quite a number had LIMBER NECK or PTOMANE. About August 1st, I began use of your DROPS, and I can say the results fully justified your statements. One case of Limber-Neck was too sick to take the medicine. I gave it some with a dropper, thinking then it a waste of time, but the next morning it was still around and finally got well. The rest of my flock straightened out and are doing well now.

Sincerely,
MRS. LUCY HONNOLD,
Celina, Ohio, R. F. D. 4,
June 19, 1925.

NEW STYLE OF
MOTION PICTURES
IS SHOWN

Said To Eliminate Optical Distortions When Viewed From Sharp Angles.

Chicago, July 17.—The Chicago Tribune today published a story that motion pictures in the third dimension, which eliminate the optical distortions experienced by those who look at the screen at sharp angles from unfavored seats have been demonstrated by a pioneer producer who has worked on the idea nine years.

By means of a special projecting device which brings back ground into sharper focus and produces a compensated perspective, every detail of the picture reflects the same intensity of light as in the original setting.

The third dimension films are almost twice the size of standard reels. They are projected on a screen measuring approximately 40 by 20 feet.

George E. Spoor, founder of the Essanay Co. and inventor of the equipment, demonstrated it yesterday at a private exhibition. Spoor withdrew from commercial production in 1916 and since has been working on the new equipment with P. John Bergen, a camera expert.

10-YEAR-OLD HEIR
TO BIG FORTUNE
LIVES IN SHACK

New York, July 17.—As the result of a decision of the court of appeals at Albany in her favor yesterday, Mrs. Mary Casey Thorne, who was divorced by the late Joel Thorne, announced today through her attorney that she will ask to be appointed guardian of her son, Joel Wolfe Thorne, Jr., 10-year-old heir to $3,000,000.

The boy, according to Mrs. Thorne's attorney, John K. Kirby, is living in a "shack" on an unpaved street in Denver, although his income from bequests from his father and grandfather is $150,000 a year. This has been tied up, however, pending outcome of the litigation decided yesterday.

The grandfather of the boy, around whom the legal fight centers, was Samuel Thorne, former partner of the late James J. Hill, railroad owner. Under his will, the boy is given $1,000,000 and the income from a fund of $2,000,000. Bequests from his father brings his fortune to $3,000,000.

JUDGE SNIDER
Suspends Sentence of Mrs. Ira
Mansberger To Marysville.

Mrs. Ira Mansberger who was taken into custody yesterday afternoon by Sheriff McNaughten and Probation Officer Belhorn of Pickaway county, plead guilty to the charge of contributing to the neglect of her minor children, before Judge Snider this morning.

Judge Snider gave her the choice of going to the Marysville Reformatory or going back to her home in Pleasantville and properly caring for her three minor children. She choose to return to her home in Pleasantville and follow Snider's orders. A sentence of thirty days at the Marysville Reformatory and a fine of ten dollars was suspended by the judge during her good behavior.—Lancaster Eagle.

Old Diamond Rivals as Coachers

Left to right, Chief Bender, one of Connie Mack's stars in the days when he was winning pennants and world series, and Hans Lobert, of New York Giants fame, who opposed each other once more when their teams met on the baseball field. Bender is coaching the Annapolis baseball team, and Lobert is coaching the West Point team.

Picks Team of All-Time
Big League Ball Stars

Since picking all-American football teams is all the rage, just to be different Hughie Jennings of the New York Giants was asked to pick an all-American baseball team.

Hughey, who has been connected with major-league baseball for better than thirty years, is certainly qualified to make the selection.

Always game, willing to take a chance, knowing his choices will meet with disfavor in many quarters, Jennings spoke thusly:

"The greatest infield I have ever seen in action would be made up of Slater at first, Lajoie at second, Wagner at short and Frisch at third.

"My selection of Frisch over Jimmy Collins will no doubt occasion some surprise. Despite the fact that Frisch is now playing second, I regard third as his natural position and consider him a more valuable all-around player than Jimmy Collins.

"The outfield would be made up of Cobb, Speaker and Keeler. I have selected Keeler in preference to Ruth because I regard him as a greater team player.

"My battery would be Mathewson and Bresnahan. There never was a better one. Incidentally, I would be content to manage the team in any league.

Sport Notes

There are over 3,000 golf and country clubs in the United States.

There are more than 2,000 golf clubs in the British Isles, in addition to 800 clubs for women.

The United States spends more on sports each year than all the other countries in the world combined.

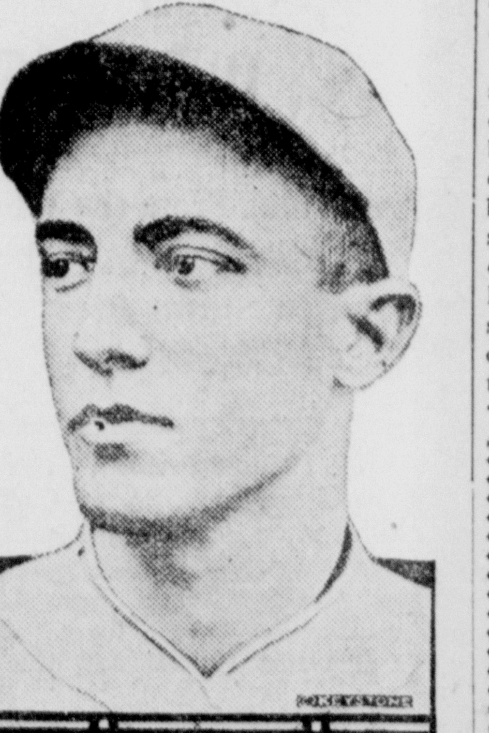

Because of the popularity of betting on all sports in England 300,000 book-makers are engaged in taking bets.

Helen Walnwright, woman all-around swimming champion, has announced her entry into the professional ranks.

One Play on Field Nets
Frank Chance $140,000

Frank Chance, the "Peerless Leader," who died in Los Angeles, Cal., gained part ownership of the team he so frequently led to victory through a single play, he once related. The one play netted him $140,000, since his stock in the club soared to that value.

It was in 1903, as Chance told it, and the Chicago Nationals were in second place fighting for the pennant and with only a few more games to play.

In a hot game at Cincinnati Chance hit safely and stole second with one out. Joe Tinker, shortstop and then a heavy hitter, was at bat. Everyone expected Tinker to swing heavily. But Chance signaled for a bunt. Tinker laid down a perfect bunt and Chance streaked for third. The "Peerless Leader" did not stop, but headed for home, sliding in safely.

Next day Charles P. Taft, the new owner of the Cubs, sent for his manager.

Chance quoted him as having said, "That was the greatest play I ever saw or ever expect to see. I am going to show you that I appreciate your work and efforts. I am going to let you buy a tenth interest in the club for $10,000."

Chance sold out for $140,000 after he left the club in 1912.

Billiard Cue Caddies a
New Wrinkle in London

New wrinkles appear continually in sport. The latest is the use of a cue-caddy. The thing started in London, and has now been brought to New York, and it is thought will likely be popular amongst the more opulent players.

When a certain noted amateur appeared in one of the noted billiard academies of London, with a boy carrying a bag containing several cues from which he made a selection for different shots as the occasion arose, he created considerable of a furore in even such a blasé sporting atmosphere.

The thing however has created a great deal of discussion pro and con. Tom Newman, the professional champion is deady opposed to it in championship play.

He thinks it might be all right for amateurs to give them a chance to develop different shots in practice, but he maintains that it would not only be against the spirit of the game, but would cause delay and confusion, since the professional looks upon his cue almost as part of himself, and has it so evenly balanced, and so sensitively aimed, that to change cue during an important match, would throw him entirely off his game.

Four Errors in Game
Gives Record to Ross

Chester Ross, pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, is reported to have set a new error record for modern-day pitchers when he turned in four miscues in a game against the Browns recently.

According to the books, the old mark was three, jointly held by several hurlers in the American league, the last one being Bob Shawkey, who chalked up a trio of boots June 25, 1921.

Ross committed his quartet over an eight-inning stretch, making two in one inning.

THE WOMAN WHO WORKS

In this new order of things, with women, both married and single, broadening their business activities, a very serious problem arises. It is the problem of what, when, and where to eat.

Breakfast is always a hurry-up meal for the men but much more so for the woman who goes to business. Lunches, of course, are taken in the lunchrooms and restaurants in the business districts and are no problem. But how about dinners? Shall they, too, be restaurant meals or can they be so planned that business women may enjoy the home cooking of which they are so fond? Take away the element of haste and anxiety and in its place put carefully thought-out menus, well planned and easily prepared, and home dinners will again regain their high favor with the working housewife.

One of the big worries is frequently with the milk. Did it come? Is it fresh? Is it frozen? Has the milkman been paid? Are the bottles washed and set out? However, there is no cause for worry about milk. Why not keep a dozen cans of evaporated milk in your pantry? There are large cans, equal to a quart of milk and smaller cans that will meet the lesser needs.

For evaporated milk is just pure, fresh milk with more than half the water missing. This water can be replaced in a jiffy, if you so desire or you can use it as cream if rich and creamy foods are desired.

Here are a few recipes that may be used by "The Woman Who Works" for forming her plans for self help and good home cooking.

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes.

|                            |                                 |
|----------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 1 pound smoked ham         | 1 1/4 cups water                |
| 4 medium potatoes          | 1 green pepper (may be omitted) |
| 1 1/4 cups evaporated milk | Flour                           |
| diluted with               |                                 |

Cover the bottom of an oiled baking dish with sliced, raw potatoes. Sprinkle with flour and piece of ham 1/4 inch square. Repeat until dish is full. Fill dish 3/4 full of diluted milk. Bake until potatoes are tender.

Eggs en Casserole.

|                    |                         |

| 6 hard-boiled eggs | 3/4 cup evaporated milk |
| 3 tomatoes         | 3/4 cup water           |
| 2 tbsp. butter     | 1/2 cup grated cheese   |
| 3 tbsp. flour      | Buttered crumbs         |
| 2 tsp. salt        |                         |

Cut hard-boiled eggs in half and arrange around the edge of a greased casserole. Slice tomatoes in center of dish. Make a white sauce of the milk, water, fat and flour. Add cheese and stir over a low fire until cheese is well mixed and smooth. Pour over tomatoes and eggs. Cover with crumbs and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Year's Oil Output

Preliminary estimates indicate that the total world production of crude oil in 1924 may have equaled the 1923 output. While the two leading producers—the United States and Mexico—appear to have registered a decline, this has been largely counterbalanced by increased output in some other countries, as Russia, Persia, Rumania and South America—notably Venezuela.

Repeating Slander as Bad as Starting It
Atlanta, Ga.—"Tale bearers are as bad as tale makers," thinks the Georgia Court of Appeals. This statement was made in a decision upholding a judgment in the Stephens Superior court, in which $2,000 was awarded in a suit alleging repetition of slanderous remarks.

The court held that even though the original slander started with a third party and the repeater had accepted the statement in good faith, every repetition was a willful slander.

Many Uses for Cheese

ONE could live on a diet of cheese, bread and fruit without anything else, if one craved no further variety. There is at least one case on record where it was done for a period of two years, by a young man, for the "sake of ease of preparation and economy." He enjoyed his menu and continued in the best of health.

Cheese is one of the most nourishing, healthful and gratifying of foods, it is given its proper place in the diet. The fuel value of a pound of cheese is equal to that of three pounds of beef, or nearly a gallon of milk. Cheese is higher in proteins than baked beans, whole milk or eggs, and when eaten for what it is, a "meat," it is as easily digested and assimilated as any other protein food.

"But," sighs the housewife, "Cheese is hard to keep in hot weather. It either becomes very hard or it gets oily and strong."

All very true of fresh cut cheese. But why not try the cheeses that come in cans? One can buy practically every kind of cheese that way nowadays.

A delightful cheese recipe you can always be prepared to serve is a cheese omelet. With powdered or evaporated milk in the house, it makes not a whit of difference if the fresh milk goes sour or doesn't arrive, or gets spilled. Take two eggs, 6 tablespoonsful of grated, canned cheese, a good pinch of salt and another of paprika, one cup milk, and a teaspoonful melted butter.

Beat the yolks of the eggs until light, fold in the cheese, salt and paprika, add the milk, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a deep pan or grill in which the butter has been melted. Cook for about six minutes, then put it in the oven for a few minutes to brown. This is delicious served with currant or damson jelly.

Eggs on toast with cream pimento sauce make an excellent luncheon dish. Rarebits are always relished when the day is not too hot. Stuffed baked potatoes sprinkled with cheese are an inspiration for a meal with creamed tuna fish or chicken, and cheese sandwiches are always delicious for the lighter refreshments.

Ancient Fashions Revived by Paris

Designers Present Bustle and Fitted Silhouette—New Short Frocks.

It is considered au fait in these times to speak of the "Psychology of Dress," and so one frequently hears the subject discussed at intimate gatherings. The subject, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, involves more than merely the tendency of fashion, what is likely to come next, just what ingenuity the modiste will employ or what is most becoming to be worn. Women really get down to fundamentals and influences, morale, history, periods, with as much thought and analysis as if they were regarding any of the fine arts.

Briskly and with much sophistication the ultra-smart may chat of the most recently acquired Reynolds or Romney, of Italian primitives and old Flemish art just brought to light, of Ambusson and Gothic tapestries, of the Spanish paintings, and almost in the same breath of the latest ideas from this or that notable designer in Paris. The trend of fashion is considered seriously, and the creators of styles are ranked with the authors of important works of art—which may be one reason why artists of a high order are more and more devoting their talents to developing and perfecting women's dress.

It is like a leisurely swing back to the Old-World days, when dress was the most absorbing interest in the life of a frivolous and overgroomed and wholly artificial society. Although it is a long sweep from the extreme severity of Colonial times to anything like the extravagances of the Continental beau monde, the present generation is arriving fast. If a certain desirable sense of proportion is maintained and the law of order and fitness obeyed the results will be most happy.

Return of Old Modes.

Some of the styles of early periods have great fascination for the modern woman of fashion. Curiously, those that have the greatest vogue are the extreme opposite of the modes that have startled the polite world for the last several years. The eccentricities of the Victorian age had little appeal to the woman who cares for grace and beauty. Any detail of the styles of that period makes its reappearance only as a clever couturier introduces it in his general scheme.

The bustle of 1880 was quite a different affair from the same motif shown in a 1925 model from one of the most illustrious houses at Paris. The crinolines of 1840 were impossible creations that made more distressing the distorted waistline of a painfully pinched-in bodice. But nothing in these, in the stiff panniers or the heavy trains, had any possibility of artistic adaptation. Each has been molded and reshaped over and over again in the endless search for novelty until it contains no further possibilities.

It is only in the tout ensemble that one catches a glimpse of reminiscent fashions, harmonized and modified often with the most delightful results.

Delightfully Youthful Version of One-Piece Paris Spring Frocks.

Erratic genius may flash a new conception, lacking the essentials of style and taste. It requires the poise of an artist to keep a fine balance of values in line and color, and the famous ones are those that present creations startling and nevertheless true.

An exceptionally chic woman who is a conspicuous example of the best form in dress stopped for a little on her way to dinner to answer a compliment paid to the frock she was wearing. She is tall, slim and patrician in bearing, and wears her clothes well. The gown she had on at this time was a Lanvin in shades of rose—not the delicate wild rose, or the La France rose, but the American Beauty shade. The foundation was made of stiff taffeta. The bodice was plain. The neck a modest 'ecollete. Sleeves nonexistent, and a waistline marked at an almost erant point.

The skirt was the full gathered early Victorian, but without the crinoline or hoops. Over this was a top skirt of tulle, gathered full and crisp, the color a shade deeper than the taffeta foundation. The trimming scheme was interesting. A line of gilt paillettes finished the neck and the deep armholes. The skirt, veiled with the claret-colored illusion/petticoot, was elaborated in the front with a large motif done in the paillettes, in crystal and pearl beads. A lavalliere of diamonds, sapphires and rubies hung from a fine gold chain over the bodice, and the silk chestnut hair was brushed in wavy lines quite fearlessly back from a high, broad brow.

This vision referred to her dress as her favorite type, and said some engaging things about styles at the moment.

Predicts Great Changes.

"Great changes are near," she said, "and all in the direction of better things. This is a day of abbreviation in manner, speech and dress. There is no time for courtesy, for proper consideration of anybody or anything, and this idea dominates a woman's mood and taste in the selection of her clothes. It is a day of elimination of unnecessary detail, of artificialities.

Coat of Rose Kasha Cloth; Dress of Sand Crepe de Chine.

"For several seasons we have been content with a swathing length of crepe or silk, abbreviated at the top, also at the bottom, and draped to show the figure according to the non-Occidental ideas. We have gone the limit, and with the question of morale not considered. A fickle and more or less moral audience desires the opposite, meaning modest, picturesque clothes. One reason that the 'period' gown appeals to me is that it makes for modesty. It is decorative, quaint, dignified and dashing as a frock can be, all at once. Still it is demure in a way. Credit is due to the designer having put this type of frock forward, season after season, until now it has a recognized vogue and is a regular mode."

In its latest adaptations the period gown is presented by both French and American designers with striking arrangement of lines and in some enchanting colors. Yellow is the latest phase in color and is shown in countless lovely variants. A clear bright amber taffeta, the usual bouffant skirt and plain basque, has motifs of gilt embroidery set at intervals on the skirt, which is veiled with an overskirt of plain tulle in a deeper shade of yellow, almost bronze.

New and Winsome Shades.

One model in corn-yellow silk divides the length of the skirt with a diagonal piece of orange taffeta, carrying the line across the bodice and over one shoulder. A piping of the deeper shade finishes skirt, neck and armholes, and a cluster of marigolds in the two yellows, with gilt-tipped petals, is fashioned at one side of the waist.

New and lovely shades of blue are shown in the gowns of this type—lapis, periwinkle, hydrangea, hyacinth, delphinium, and more than there are names to fit. And some adorable things are done in all white, in frosty taffeta with clouds of tulle. One from the atelier of Madeleine Vionnet is caught at regular spaces with clusters of snowdrops, and another, designed by an American artist, is fringed with soft-stemmed white violets. These wide-skirted, quaint-bodied costumes invite countless fancies in embellishment, all of them intriguing. Such garments are not in any sense monopolizing the mode, but they are exceedingly popular at the moment and represent a distinguished reproduction.

Another new-old style that is increasing in popularity is the directoire. Its lines of generous diversity suggest more suitable gowns and wraps for afternoon and somewhat "dressy" street wear. But the narrow petticoat and the redingote of brocade or trimmed silk, always with rich detail, go into the making of some striking costumes for dinner, supper-dances and the after-the-play parties at the smart dance clubs.

The reverse of one fashion tendency is reflected in the comments of the up-to-date Parisian modistes who are making their evening dresses, especially the dance frocks, extremely short.

Czechoslovakian Claims Descent From Columbus

Rome.—Nitra, in Czechoslovakia, claims the distinction of having as one of its few inhabitants a direct descendant of Christopher Columbus. The bearer of the historic name of Rodolfo Colombo is a music instructor.

Rodolfo's father, Giovanni Colombo, was a major in an Austrian infantry regiment. In 1910 the major read in a Viennese newspaper a notice inserted by the executors of the defunct Spanish prince, Cristoforo Colombo of Veragua, a descendant of the navigator, inviting all the presumptive heirs to present their claims.

Giovanni was too poor to engage a lawyer to look after the affair, but succeeded himself in finding a certificate of baptism of the year 1712 which proved that one of his ancestors, Leopoldo Colombo, had been a member of the imperial guard. This certificate proved clearly the nobility of the family.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

REMOVED THE SECRETARY OF COMMISSION
Columbus, O., July 20 (UP).—R. H. Kauffman, of Columbus, was removed from the office of secretary of the Ohio Tax commission today when the Lipp act became a law giving the commission control over its own employees.
Kauffman was appointed by the finance department which had controlled tax commission employees until today. No successor to the secretary has been named.

RUBBER CITY CENTENNIAL IN FULL SWAY

Celebration Lasts a Whole Week—Huge Homecoming and Reunion.

Akron, O., July 20 (UP).—Today is "Akron Day" at the Centennial celebration of the founding of this city. The celebration started Sunday, but today is the big day which actually opens festivities.
The city is decked in holiday array, ready to "strut its stuff" for the thousands of visitors attending the Centennial.
Exhibits of the city's earliest exploits and industries are being shown covering the development of the city from the time it was merely a little frontier town to the present day when it ranks as one of the greatest manufacturing cities in the country.
Parades, featuring floats by nearly every company and organization in the city, are the big features of the day. At night there will be a magnificent display of fireworks, with street carnivals and mardi-gras.
Tuesday will be "Youth's" day, followed by "Fraternal" day. The celebration closes July 25 with a huge homecoming and reunion.

BUSINESS MEN BARNUMIZED BY TWO WOMEN

"Posing as penniless, praying as members of a local church, and relating a series of fabrications calculated to touch the hearts of those who heard them, two women were exposed in their true light here Friday" and were ordered out of the city with instruction never to return," says the Washington C. H. Herald.
It developed that when the women paid the bus driver for taking them from Circleville Thursday evening, that the younger one had a roll of bills.
The older woman, it was found, had been an inmate of the reformatory and that the younger one had been in jail in Portsmouth recently.
The description fits two women who were in this city last week and obtained some money from business people whom they Barnumized.

KEEPING WELL
HOW ARE YOUR CHILD'S TEETH?
DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor "HEALTH"

YOU want your boy or girl to be attractive and healthy and to get good marks in school, don't you?
Many factors combine to bring about these results, but one often overlooked is the condition of the child's teeth.
The bones of a child are soft and pliable and the habit of sucking the thumb, which many mothers permit to go unchecked, may cause a deformity of the mouth which will spoil the appearance for life. The thumb-sucking habit forces the jaw bones out of place, with the result that the upper front teeth are pushed outward and the lower ones backward until the entire face is deformed.
Usually, however, the "baby" teeth are straight and pretty. They are small and the jaws are large enough for them. It is the second teeth that commonly are not right. If they come in crooked, it is generally because the jaws are not large enough to accommodate them. Sometimes the jaws are stunted because they have not had enough exercise in chewing solid food. Or the jaw development may have been retarded because the child is poorly nourished. If the general development of the child is not good, the jaw and tooth development is likely to be poor and if the jaw bones are not sufficiently developed, the teeth will be crowded out of their normal position so that the upper and lower teeth do not meet in order to bite and chew properly. The inability to chew the food thoroughly will result in indigestion and the crooked, crowded teeth give the child an unattractive appearance which may be so great as to be a positive deformity. How many children have you seen who would have been pretty but for teeth that were crooked or that protruded or that were decayed?
In these days of keen competition in every line of effort, each individual needs every advantage and equipment in the way of ability and appearance in order to hold his own and make his way in the world. It is a crime to allow a child to grow up with a physical handicap that can be corrected. The handicap of bad teeth and deformed face can, in most cases, be overcome.
See that your child makes regular visits to the dentist and see that his instructions are obeyed. Don't make it possible for your child when grown to blame you for an unattractive face, for poor school or business records, or for poor health, if these defects may be the results of a condition so easily remedied as bad teeth.

Famous Ring
The museum of Versailles now has the ring with which M. Clemenceau sealed the famous treaty in 1919, and it is a ring that had an interesting history even before that. Charles Naundorff, who maintained that he was Louis XVII of France, gave it to Jules Favre, who became foreign minister, and M. Favre used it to seal the armistice of 1871 at Versailles, because his marck was unwilling to wait until the state seal could be brought from Paris.

"EVOLUTION"
By James Langdon Smith
When you were a Tadpole and I was a Fish,
In the Paleozoic time,
And side by side on the ebbing tide
We sprawled through the ooze and slime,
Or skittered with many a caudal flip
Through the depths of the Cambrian fen,
My heart was rife with the joy of life,
For I loved you even then.
Mindless we lived and mindless we loved,
And mindless at last we died;
And deep in the rift of the Caradoc drift
We slumbered side by side.
The world turned on in the lathe of time,
The hot lands heaved amain,
Till we caught our breath from the womb of death,
And crept into light again.

We were Amphibians, scaled and tailed,
And drab as a dead man's hand;
We coiled at ease 'neath the dripping trees,
Or trailed through the mud and sand,
Croaking and blind, with our three-clawed feet
Writing a language dumb,
With never a spark in the empty dark
To hint at a life to come.

Yet happy we lived, an happy we loved,
An happy we died once more;
Our forms were rolled in the clinging mold
Of a Necromean shore,
The eons came, and the eons fled,
And the sleep that wrapped us fast
Was riven away in a newer day,
And the night of death was past.

Then light and swift through the Jungle trees
We swung in our airy flights,
Or breathed in the balms of the fronded palms,
In the hush of the moonless nights
And oh! what beautiful years were these,
When our hearts clung each to each;
When life was filled and our senses thrilled
In the first faint dawn of speech.

Thus life by life, and love by love,
We passed through the cycles strange,
And breath by breath, and death by death,
We followed the chain of change,
Till there came a time in the law of life
When over the nursing sod
The shadows broke, and the soul awoke
In a strange, dim dream of God.

I was thewed like an Auroch bull,
And tusked like the great Cave Bear;
And you, my sweet, from head to feet,
Were gowned in your glorious hair.
Deep in the gloom of a fireless cave,
When the night fell o'er the plain,
And the moon hung red o'er the river bed,
We mumbled the bones of the slain.

I flaked a flint to a cutting edge,
And shaped it with brutish craft;
I broke a shank from the woodland dank,
And fette it head and haft.
Then I hid me close to the ready tarn,
Where the Mammoth came to drink;
Through brawn and bone I drave the stone,
And slew him upon the brink.

Loud I howled through the moonlit wastes,
Loud answered our kith and kin;
From west to east to the crimson feast
The clan came trooping in.
O'er joint and gristle and padded hoof
We fought and clawed and tore,
And cheek by jowl, with many a growl,
We talked the marvel o'er.

I carved that fight on a reindeer bone
With rude and hairy hand,
I pictured his fall on the cavern wall
That men might understand.
For we lived by blood, and the right of might,
Ere human laws were drawn,
And the Age of Sin did not begin
Till our brutal tusks were gone.

And that was a million years ago,
In a time that no man knows;
Yet here tonight in the mellow light
We sit at Delmonico's.
Your eyes are deep as the Devon springs,
Your hair is dark as jet;
Your years are few, your life is new,
Your soul untried, and yet—

Our trail is on the Kimberidge clay,
And the scarp of the Purbeck flags,
We have left our bones in the Bag-shot stone,
And deep in the Coraline crags;
Our love is old, our lives are old,
And death shall come amain.
Should it come today, what man may say
We shall not live again?

God wrought our souls from the Tremadoc beds
And furnished them wings to fly;
He sowed our spawn in the world's dim dawn,
And I know that it shall not die,
Though cities have sprung above the graves
Where the crook-boned men made war,
And the ox-wain creaks o'er the buried caves
Where the mummied Mammoths are.
Then, as we linger at luncheon here,
O'er many a dainty dish,
Let us drink anew to the time when you
Were a Tadpole and I was a Fish.

AMUSEMENTS

The first motion picture ever to play on Broadway at five dollars a seat—that's the reputation "Madame Sans Gene," hailed as Gloria Swanson's cinemasterpiece, made for itself at its opening performance in New York. Moreover, the theater was packed to the rafters for the occasion, with hundreds of unsuccessful applicants for seats and a crowd of several thousands giving the police a tussle outside the theater in their efforts to get into the place and also to catch a glimpse of Miss Swanson and her French nobleman husband, the Marquis de la Falaise de la Coudraye.
Even for Gloria Swanson, whose screen efforts are always acted in elaborate settings and gowns, "Madame Sans Gene" is an unusually luxurious production. It was filmed in France and the backgrounds include the palaces at Versailles, Fontainebleau and Compiegne, spots hitherto forbidden to motion picture directors. Gloria is seen sleeping in the actual golden bed of Marie Antoinette, flirting in the gardens where that unfortunate queen conducted her amorous intrigues, and coquetting with Napoleon (Emile Drain) in the actual private chamber which the real Napoleon occupied. The results are said to be startlingly realistic in the extreme.
In "Madame Sans Gene" (Madame Devil-May-Care), Miss Swanson has the role of the witty, flirtatious little French laundress, who used to wash Napoleon's shirts for him, when he was an impecunious corporal, who married one of Napoleon's sergeants, and who was swept by the French Revolution into the title of duchess and residence in Napoleon's court, where she alternately scandalized and sent into hilarious laughter the haughty lords and ladies, ending by saving the empress' honor and winning for herself Napoleon's eternal gratitude.
Charles de Roche, the Pharaoh of Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments," heads the cast playing in support of Miss Swanson. The picture was directed by Leonce Perret from Forrest Halsey's adaptation of the stage play by Victorien Sardou and Emile Moreau. Opening Monday at the Met theater.

LEGISLATIVE ENACTMENTS OPERATIVE

Rate Schedules of Ohio Bell Telephone May be Investigated.

Columbus, O., July 20 (UP).—Eight acts passed by the last legislature, several of them over the veto of Governor Donahey, became laws today when the ninety day referendum period expired. These include the McDonald real estate reappraisal bill, one of the Republican majority taxation program measures.
One hundred and fifty thousand dollars become available for the public utilities commission investigation of the rate schedules of the Ohio Bell Telephone company, and officials issuing automobile licenses begin getting a fifteen cent fee on each license issued.
Other new laws becoming effective today include: the Dodd act, authorizing levies for operating purposes; the Vorys compulsory budget act; Dempsey corporation franchise tax; Kreuger act, regulating the issuance of bonds by political subdivisions; and the law giving the counties authority to establish adult probation departments.

The guests were invited from three until six o'clock and during these hours various games and contests were enjoyed. At a seasonable time, a lovely two course luncheon was served.

The color scheme of pink and white was used in the decorations, sweet peas and snapdragons being used throughout the rooms. The festal board was centered with a large birthday cake with six candles and pink and white streamers were arranged to each of the four corners of the table. The favors were pink baskets filled with candy.

Nature's Protection.
Evolution has taught the citrus plants that a tiny drop of oil thrown right will often cover up the mold spores' skin and fill the insect's breathing pores. Oranges, lemons, limes, and kindred fruits are armed with rank, ill-smelling sacs of oil, set ready to deluge the invader of the rind. Get an orange and cut its skin. Notice the little fountains of spray that shoot up before the knife, filling the air with the odor of orange. Examine a piece of cut rind with a hand lens. A waxy layer is in contact with the air, beneath it lies a mass of spongy cells, and in the sponge are many large bottle-like oil vessels. Their mouths open outward through minute pores. In nature they are turgid and full of oil. When anything disturbs their mouths they burst, driving the oil out in a spurt. Let the light fall brightly on the cells and notice their smooth, greasy walls. Only insects and parasitic plants that had been evolved to meet it would ever live to tell of being shot with orange oil.

Old Pilgrim Documents.
In connection with the tercentenary of the arrival of the Mayflower and the landing of the Pilgrims in America, a careful search has been carried on by scholars in Holland to discover records of the life of the Puritans while in that country. One of the most interesting of the discoveries is a statement by King James of England made through his ambassador, in which he denounces the Pilgrims as "ill-conditioned Brownists, not submissive to king hierarchy—banished men, who deserve no sympathy." Other documents show that the Pilgrims, while in Holland, learned many practical things which had great influence on the history of America, such as the accountability of magistrates to the people; the value of popular election whether of ministers or magistrates; the registration of deeds and mortgages; the personal care of the poor; the duty and the privilege of the freedom of the press.—Boys' Life.

OHIO MAY BE PROHIBITION DISTRICT

Washington, July 17.—(UP.)—Ohio may be a district all by itself in the contemplated revision of prohibition enforcement districts, it was learned today.
The change made necessary by protests to the department from influential congressmen and senators interested in placing their candidates in the seats of district authority very likely will break up the proposed District Number 11 which was to include Ohio and West Virginia.

KING OF THE RODEOS

(Copyright by R. R. Doubleday.)

Tex Austin, a name that is known in every locality in the country where horses are bred or cattle raised. Such is the man who will draw on his years of experience to manage the Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo to be held for nine days, beginning August 15.

"King of the Rodeo" is the title Austin has won. Born in the great state for which he was named, he was raised in the atmosphere of the range. He participated in the thrilling deeds of the famous contests of the Far West and then became a ranchman himself. Wherever the roundups have been staged, Austin's name has become synonymous with the cowboy sport. In the effort to perpetuate the spirit of the West, he managed and directed numberless rodeos in the West, also giving the East its first thrills from cowboy contests. Then, spreading the fame of Uncle Sam further, he put on the first international rodeo at Wembley, England, under the auspices of the British government.

DEATH TAXES AS BUSINESS KILLERS

Assistant Treasury Secretary Tells Fable of Fate of Two Successful Men.

Men cannot be expected to continue to work, day after day, increasing the productiveness of this country and benefiting others, if they know that on death the major portion of their earnings will be dissipated in Federal estate and state inheritance taxes, declares Charles S. Dewey, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in the American Bankers Association Journal. He says:

"I am going to relate a fable in terms of modern business conditions. John Henry and Walter Brown were aggressive, hard-working men, and each had started business for himself."

"At the time this history opens, John Henry had just died, leaving his entire estate to his son, John Henry, Jr., and had appointed his old friend, Walter Brown, as executor. Prior to his death John Henry had moved to California, leaving his business in the hands of his son under whom it had continued to make excellent headway. The father had been doing a little speculating in oil. This venture had not proved successful and he was indebted in the sum of $500,000.

"Executor Walter Brown, on examination of the estate, found the following situation:

Capital stock of Henry & Co., Inc., a Michigan Corp. .... $5,000,000
Personal debts due banks .... 500,000

"Walter Brown soon made the unpleasant discovery that in addition to the personal indebtedness of $500,000, and administration expenses of $250,000, the following death duties must be paid:

Federal estate tax ..... $197,500
California inheritance tax ..... 535,700
Michigan inheritance tax ..... 125,000

Total ..... $1,258,200

"Added to the personal debt and administration expenses, this made a grand total liability of $1,955,200. The year was 1920. Money was tight. Other manufacturing companies in the same line which might have been interested in a purchase had no money for extensions nor were the banks in a position to handle a loan of this type. Here was a most successful business, built up from small beginnings by one man and carried on to further successes by his son, about to be placed under the hammer.

"Is there any justice in taxation that may force a man and his family to lose the fruits of his entire life's labor, and permit others to benefit? As a last resort, Henry, Jr., was forced into a bond issue. A loan, to settle the debts, administration expenses and death duties, of $2,250,000 was negotiated, upon the following basis:

"The capital stock of the company was left at $5,000,000 represented by 50,000 shares. First mortgage 8 per cent bonds were offered the public with a bonus of two shares of stock with each $1,000 bond. The banker, to protect his bond customers, kept 30,000 shares to assure control of management, and John Henry, Jr., received the balance of 15,000 shares. John now has a good job as general manager of his father's old company, but they do not pay him very much.

"Now we must return to Walter Brown, executor of John Henry, Sr. Walter had always kept close to his own manufacturing business. The more he considered his own situation, the more closely it seemed to him to resemble that of his old friend.

"He therefore called a lawyer and made a complete schedule of his assets, requesting that an estimate of administration expenses and death duties be made. The schedule of assets was as follows:

Capital stock, Walter Brown Co., Mich. Corp. .... $1,000,000
California real estate ..... 1,000,000
Tax-exempt bonds, Minn., Mont. and Colo. .... 500,000

Total ..... $2,500,000

"Within a few days Mr. Brown's lawyer made the following report:

Debts and admin. expenses ..... $500,000
Fed. estate tax ..... $110,525
Cal. inheritance tax ..... 418,194
Mich. inheritance tax ..... 269,099
Minn. inheritance tax ..... 4,289
Mont. inheritance tax ..... 4,486
Colo. inheritance tax ..... 2,700

Total death duties ..... $1,425,703

Total expenses ..... $1,925,703

"On this basis the estate suffered a reduction from $2,500,000 to approximately $3,574,000, thus wiping out all assets except the corporate stock and placing a heavy loan on that. Mr. Brown had one son and, as he thought of John Henry, Jr., toiling away with little hope of opportunity he determined that he would not subject his own son to the same tribulations.

"Boom times having come, there was no difficulty obtaining a purchaser for Walter Brown & Co., and the California real estate was sold at a good price. The whole was invested in tax-exempt bonds which yielded a very safe return of about 4 1/2 per cent. Walter Brown then moved his legal residence to the more friendly climate of Florida, where state inheritance and income taxes are forbidden.

"The country suffers by the loss of effort which Walter Brown might have continued to expend under a more intelligent system of taxation. We must reform the tax system in such a way that business and industry shall not be hampered. We must make sure that American citizens shall not be deprived of the incentive to work and accumulate and that this country shall not cease to be a land of opportunity. A tax system which discourages initiative cannot be the right system for America."

STOP WASTING--OR FACE PAUPERISM

By WILLIAM E. KNOX
President, American Bankers Association

William E. Knox

The American standard of living, the highest in the world, came easily in the past from the abundance of our natural wealth, but it can be maintained in the future only by drastic national economy in the use of that wealth. We have grown up to our resources. We can not afford to waste them any longer. Industrially we have got to stop wasting, but even more so have we got to stop the wastefulness of our personal habits.

The paramount challenge to education in America today calls for the effective teaching of personal economics—for education in the management of personal incomes so that they will give every individual a good living during his productive years and provide certain security for the non-productive years of his old age.

Forty-four million people, two-fifths of our population, are gainfully employed in the United States, earning more than $60,000,000,000 annually. The management of the expenditure of this $60,000,000,000 annual pay check is the biggest and most important business in America. It has been estimated that upwards of $10,000,000,000 of this personal income is wasted annually. More than a billion, it is estimated, disappears in foolish speculation in fake schemes.

The spirit of waste in America is a heritage of the past, but today the country has more than one hundred and fourteen million people to support and no nation's resources can withstand extravagance indefinitely. An increase in population will mean a reduced average of personal wealth unless intelligent management maintains a progressively more economic utilization of the national income.

To teach our people this is the task of education and it can not begin to meet the task a moment too soon. The advance of civilization makes man's existence a more and more serious business. Human responsibilities and duties increase each year. If progress has made life more abundant it has also made it more expensive. It is impossible for most men to increase their real wages. Therefore they must meet their added responsibilities out of more economic employment of what they get.

The schools must teach our young people so to manage their own personal affairs as to insure that they will lead lives that have an economic worth to society and to themselves. Business must provide plans for its workers to enable them not only to earn but also to save so that the teaching of the schools will not prove an illusion in practice. Do these things and we will have no pauperism in America. Neglect to do them and we will ultimately develop pauperism, a nation's worst social crime.

WHEN GREEK
MEETS GREEK

AS THE girl waited for the gate to open for the New Canaan express which was to carry her into the wintry wilds of Connecticut she was thinking testily. How stupid it was to travel alone! How dull the people who waited for trains always looked! Why didn't some nice masculine thing breeze up and hail her with "Hello, Nancy Lee, are you going to the Marvins' too?" Why couldn't she ever have any luck?

Like that fellow just ahead of her. How nice to have somebody come along and at least say good-by cheerfully. She listened enviously.

"Hello, Billy Bolter! Helen made me bring you her love. One of the kids was sick—Jinks, I believe—or she'd have come herself. She wanted to send you a kiss, but I said that I'd be fried in oil before I'd kiss a man good-by in the Grand Central, even for the best sister-in-law that a man ever made the mistake of not marrying himself. So all you'll get from me is a warning."

Her discontent had lost one of its edge as she settled into her seat after depositing her neat suitcase, with the bold initials "N. L." on its end, in the rack above. Pickles and poison pie!

Suddenly she turned with a start. The rather nice voice was saying, "I beg your pardon, but is it possible that you are Norah Lang?"

As she looked into the not bad-looking face the provocative little smile that flickered about her eyes would have gleamed to any of the masculine bits of wreckage that strewed the shores of her brief but glorious past like the red lamp of danger.

A firm little hand went out toward him.

"Why, Billy Bolter, what are you doing here? Won't you sit down?"

For a moment the mouth in the not bad-looking face opened inanely. Then it closed in a firm line and Billy Bolter sat down.

"How did you know who I was?" said the girl. "Had Helen told you about me? Poor Helen! It's hard on her having Jinks so sick. If it weren't for Frank I don't know what she'd do. Do you?"

"No, I don't," admitted the rather nice voice. "Of course there's Bob. As a husband he's not bad."

"Husbands don't count," asserted the girl. "They're too—too—married, aren't they?"

"Then you don't want a husband, I judge?" said Billy, tentatively.

"Of course I do!" retorted the girl. "How else could a girl get a brother-in-law like Frank?"

"Is that all you would want a husband for?" The question sounded a trifle anxious.

"What would you want a wife for?" the girl countered. "Or don't you want one?"

"I should say I do!" Billy replied with conviction. "That's what I'm here for!"

"You mean you're starting out on this cold, bleak trip on purpose to get a wife?" the girl demanded.

"Oh, no," was the reply. "I started out to go skiing. But now I've decided to get a wife."

"Before you get back?" asked the girl.

"Long before, I hope." The rather nice voice grew just a little nicer. "I think I'll lose no time."

"Oh, you do?" The girl's voice had a shade of defiance. "How far are you going?"

"As far as I need to," was the prompt reply. "To get her, I mean."

The not bad-looking face was smiling directly into hers and, for perhaps the first time within the memory of man, the girl flushed a little disconcertedly.

"But where are you going?" The subject seemed safer.

"New Canaan," was the cheerful reply. "To the Marvins'."

"You're not?" The girl's voice was a trifle shaky.

"Oh, yes. Aren't you?" said Billy.

"They asked me up there especially to meet Norah Lang. In fact, they dared me to come. They said nobody had failed to fall for her yet."

"Of course you're sure you won't," said the girl, with a distinct chill in her voice. "Well, I hope you will."

"I have," said Billy Bolter.

"Oh, no," said the girl decidedly. "You only think you have."

Hours pass swiftly when the ancient—and not always honorable—game is under way. New Canaan was not nearly so welcome as two travelers had expected it to be when they set out.

As they stepped to the platform a girl and a man met them.

"Hello, Norah!" said the girl of the train to the girl of the platform.

"Hello, Jimmie!" said the man of the platform to the man of the train.

The travelers, with scant courtesy for their welcome, faced each other.

"Aren't you Norah Lang?" demanded the man.

"Aren't you Billy Bolter?" demanded the girl.

"I'm Norah Lang," said the girl of the platform. "She's Nancy Lee."

"Nobody calls him Billy Bolter except Frank and Helen," said the man of the platform. "We've got two cutters here. Jimmie, will you drive Miss Lang? I'll take Nancy Lee."

Billy Bolter turned his not bad-looking face definitely to the girl of the train and, in his quite nice voice said, "I'm taking Nancy."

"Yes, Jimmie," said Nancy Lee.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON HAVING MONEY ON HAND

"Aunt, why is it such a good thing to have cash in the bank?" asked Jane of Aunt Emmy. "Mr. Wilkins was talking to father yesterday and he said that every one ought to have a certain amount of cash on hand."

"He meant that if you keep some of your money in the bank where it can be had any time you might be able to use it to excellent advantage," said Aunt Emmy. "Every now and then a good opportunity presents itself to make a nice profit in some business deal if you only have the cash on hand so you can act quickly. Don't you remember about that quarrel the Brown brothers had over their inheritance and to settle it sold that house in Center Street? Old Peter Haskins bought it in for $3,000 and the next week sold it for $4,200. If he hadn't had the cash on hand he never could have made that handsome profit."

"Yes, Aunt, that's all right for Mr. Haskins, but I'm never likely to have $3,000 or $4,000 on hand."

"Well there are other little ways to make a profit," said Aunt Emmy. "For instance, you can always benefit by cash discounts. That is, if some one asks you to pay, say $100 for a thing, you can usually get it for less, sometimes ten per cent less, if you pay at once in cash. You always should have some of your money in cash so that you can take advantage of golden opportunities and cash discounts."—A. B. Aymes.

BANKERS' HELP

The plan as outlined by the county agent is to purchase young purebred sires and place them wherever a farmer is found who is willing to undertake the proposition. The bankers will advance the purchase price and take a note for one year without interest. The idea is to make it as easy as possible for the farmers to procure thoroughbreds.

His Teeth in His Lungs
Send Man to Hospitals

New York.—Attacked by a violent spell of coughing, Conrad Wimler, 187 Thirty-second street, Brooklyn, swallowed his upper teeth. His wife took him to Norwegian hospital, but physicians there were unable to locate the plate and suggested that Wimler return home until later, when an X-ray could be taken and the teeth removed.

He returned home, but the pain became so intense that his wife took him to the Brooklyn Eye and Ear hospital. Physicians there said the work would require specialists and advised him to go home and wait until 9 o'clock. Wimler did.

At 9 o'clock he again appeared, so weak that he was put to bed while the pulmonary region was X-rayed. Late that night the plate with a full set of teeth was removed by Dr. John Auwerda, fourteen hours after Wimler had swallowed them. Neither the plate nor Wimler's throat were injured.

Dynamite Fishing

Two young men while fishing near Melbourne, Australia, recently tried to set off a bottle of dynamite and kill scores of fish. They forgot to put a weight on the bottle and their dog jumped in after it. As the fuse was slowly burning down the fishermen started to run, but the faster they ran the faster the dog and dynamite came after them. The bottle exploded about 25 feet from them and the dog disappeared.

Radio Relief Record Feat

What is considered a record radio feat in time of disaster was achieved by WLS, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station, Chicago, during the tornado which spread ruin and death over the states of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee. When the first news of the disaster reached WLS, George D. Hay, the "Solemn Old Judge" announcer, Ford and Glenn and others of the staff started pleas for aid. For ten days these appeals through the air for aid were made night and day. In a few hours $11,000 was collected. This was matched at once by a $10,000 contribution by Sears-Roebuck & Co. When the final returns were tabulated it showed a total of $214,401.74. It is estimated that more than 50,000 individuals and organizations contributed. Included in the list were 312 Sunday schools and other church organizations; 120 villages and cities as units; 258 public schools; 500 clubs and fraternal organizations; 774 firms and their employees. It was called the "WLS Listeners' Relief Fund," of which E. H. Powell was chairman. Of the fund $125,000 was given to the Chicago Association of Commerce-Red Cross Relief committee; $25,000 to the "Grub-stakes committee" of the Illinois Agricultural Association; $28,771.45 to the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation; and $5,000 each to the governors of Kentucky and Tennessee. In addition, Samuel R. Guard, director of the Foundation, traversed the tornado-torn areas in an airplane, and established Rural Relief stations, designed to give special aid to the farmers, to help them rebuild their homes and plow and plant their land.

Awaits Reclamation.

The southern swamp lands have grown, rather than diminished, in area since the Civil war, because of the decay of rice growing. Many old rice fields have now fallen under the dominion of the swamp. But the bulk of this swamp country has always been wild although the adjacent uplands have been cultivated since colonial days. The swamps have always been a region of romance and legend. They have sheltered pirates and smugglers, panthers and bears and strange wild animals from foreign lands escaped off stranded vessels. No private citizen or organization has ever had the strength or courage to try to conquer them. Here and there a dent has been made in the edge—nothing more. The placing of these wild lands under the rule of the plow, like the conquest of the western desert, is a task for the whole strength of the nation.

Best Coating for Iron

If entirely impervious, either tin or zinc coatings will protect iron. As, however, such coatings are almost invariably porous or are likely to be penetrated by abrasion, the zinc coatings furnish better protection because the exposed iron does not rust as long as zinc is present in close proximity. Tin coatings, on the other hand, accelerate the corrosion of any exposed iron.

APPRAISERS APPOINTED BY AUDITOR

County Auditor Bryce Briggs has appointed the following persons as appraisers of real property in the city of Circleville: O. S. Howard, E. S. Neuding, T. F. Jeffries, T. M. Barnes and J. R. Noecker. They will begin their duties September 1. The appointments for townships have not yet been made, but will be within a few days.

It is expected that the work of the appraisal, filing and accounting with adjustments will take a period of at least six months and will cost the county nearly $25,000. The board of review is composed of the county auditor, county treasurer and president of the board of county commissioners.

The last appraisal was made in 1810.

The suit was brought to determine the rights of two sets of heirs who claimed the $22,000 fund which comprised the estate of Percy Howard, who died unmarried and without issue and who left no will.

Judge Hornbeck decided that the money should go to Lincoln H. Weldon, W. A. Howard, Mary Arter, Emma F. Treat and the son of Belle Bessey, who will now receive the $22,000.

Why Spring Cleaning

The idea of spring cleaning came to the moderns by way of the Dutch people, who borrowed it from the ancient Jews. Cleaning up was a custom associated with the celebration of the passover, which falls about the same time as Easter. The first mention of spring cleaning in the English language appears to have been in the writings of Sir Thomas More, the famous lord chancellor, who was beheaded by Henry VIII.

Egyptian Sphinxes

The sphinxes were not the tombs of kings. Archeologists are of the opinion that they were employed to guard the approach to a temple. According to the inscriptions of the eighteenth dynasty in the shrine between the paws of the Great Sphinx it represented the Sun God Harmachis. In many cases the heads of sphinxes were royal portraits.
